90 NAMED TO LEAD 'SALES, JOBS' DRIVE

Committee to Launch Campaign Tomorrow at Meeting at Legion Home.

HEAR ORIGINATOR OF IDEA

Detroit Man Who Helped Draft Plan to Lick Depression Will Be Speaker.

A committee of 90 men was named today to set in motion Mansfield's "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign which has been designed to help lick the depression.

The drive will be actually launched at 8 p. m. tomorrow when this group meets at the American Legion assembly room with one of the men who originated the idea.

Talk Open to Public.

Ralph Cameron, Detroit, who was one of the small group who worked out plans for the crusade which later was put into effect in Lincoln, Neb., will be the speaker. Although primarily for employers in business and industry, the talk is open to the public and to sales people in all lines of work.

Under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants association, Mansfield business and industrial concerns will mobilize this week for the campaign that is intended to rout the "psychological depression" that is an important factor in the actual depression.

Calls on Entire City to Aid.

Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said the entire city is expected to take part in the "Sales Mean Jobs" drive which officially opens Aug. 1.

"Every person in the city can help if they will stop talking about the depression," Williams said. "Employers and sales people are going to take another hitch in their belts, roll up their sleeves, put on a smile—and go to work to lick this thing called 'depression'."

Named to the committee are:

Walter L. Beckley, John B. Coleman, Charles Hartenfels, L. J. Washburn, A. M. Colby, R. B. Gardner, George C. Kyle, R. E. Burns, Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Frank Voegele, Frank J. Hughes, C. R. Arbaugh, Lester Cretors, Guy Lautsbaugh, Paul Snyder, John S. Jones, D. O. Meese, R. F. Cox, R. V. Morgan, Otis Sowash, Henry J. Carew, Robert Remy, Paul Sturges, Joe Scanlon.

BUMPER WHEAT CROP REPORTED

County Yield Up 20 to 25 Per Cent But Farmers Getting Only Half 1937 Price.

A better-than-average wheat crop was pouring into Richland county elevators today, but farmers were collecting only 63 cents per bushel for their grain, little more than half the $1.16 they were paid at the beginning of the threshing season last year.

Despite the pessimistic predictions of a number of county farmers, Mansfield grain dealers said fields are yielding from 20 to 25 per cent better than last year and the grain is of far better quality.

The increased yield was not expected to off-set the price slash which was attributed to a huge hold-over from 1937 and a bumper crop this year in the western wheat-producing states.

The heaviest yield in the county, and one of the best reported in recent years, was 47 bushels per acre from a 20-acre field on the Raemelton farms, southwest of the city.

Most of the county farms were producing an average of 18 to 20 bushels per acre, millers said. Frost damage to early planted fields, however, reduced the production in some sections.

"The grain is many times better in quality than last year, and will make much better flour," J. O. Hanley of the Hanley Milling company, said.

"While most farmers got only No. 3 grade prices for their wheat last year, they are getting the No. 1 price this season," he pointed out.

About half of the county's wheat crop is being harvested and threshed with combines this year, but the combine-threshed wheat is showing more moisture content than that threshed from the shock, a report from the Lantz Mills said.

County Agent George B. Ganyard predicted most of the threshing would be completed by Aug. 1 if the weather is favorable. A number of farmers, however, were said to be storing their wheat in their barns to hold it for a better price. Stored grain will be threshed late in the summer.

1,500 WHAT HE 'WON'T DO'

'I Won't Fire an Employe for Telling Truth, Beg Dimes or Be Cry Baby,' He Says.

REFERS TO DAVEY ACTS

Hits Highway Department, Would Name Non-Partisan Board to Pick Director.

Asserting that state employes have virtually become vassals under the Davey administration, owing allegiance to the governor rather than to the public, Charles Sawyer, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, renewed his charges last night in Central park that Gov. Davey has taken the state government away from the people.

Approximately 1,500 persons heard Sawyer as he enumerated a series of acts of Davey which he said "I won't do if I am elected governor."

Calls Him 'My Opponent.'

Sawyer never mentioned Davey by name but referred to him repeatedly as "my opponent."

Describing the state highway department as "the most disgraceful thing in Ohio history," Sawyer promised reorganization of that department, with the appointment of a non-partisan highway commission which would name a chief engineer to head the highway activities.

"I won't fire a highway employe for telling the truth, either," he declared, referring to the Sparks case last winter, in which a state highway official's job was abolished after he testified before the senate investigating committee of alleged excessive payments by the highway department for "hot mix" paving material.

Cites More 'I Won'ts.'

"I won't beg dimes and nickels to buy a rug for my office; I won't abuse the pardon power; I won't play on the heartstrings of the old age pensioners, and I won't crybaby around about being the victim of a newspaper conspiracy," Sawyer said.

"I would expect the newspapers to criticize me as governor, but I would heed their criticism and change my methods if I thought the papers were right and I was wrong," he declared.

Sawyer charged that state employes had been scared into contributing to the Davey campaign fund and that so many demands had been placed on them that they had little money left from their salaries after meeting all their obligations to the governor.

Sawyer called for harmony in the state Democratic ranks and

Joan and Franchot Come To Parting of the Ways

Another 'Ideal' Hollywood Marriage Shattered; They Separate, Divorce Action Expected Later.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Joan Crawford, the one-time chorus girl who became one of Hollywood's suavest first ladies, ended still another "ideal" marriage today by announcing her separation from Franchot Tone, her second husband.

Miss Crawford, who once said she believed all actresses should remain spinsters, wouldn't answer the telephone at her Brentwood Hills mansion. Tone, son of a wealthy manufacturer, a Cornell graduate, and society man turned actor, moved to an undisclosed hotel.

Best for Happiness.

The only word from them was contained in this formal statement issued by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the studio where they both are under contract:

"We regret this action, but we believe it is the best way out for our future happiness."

For weeks there had been rumors that all was not well with the Tones. Both denied such rumors.

Tone's movie contract ends in November. He is expected to go to New York to appear on the stage, after which divorce proceedings probably will be started. Miss Crawford will remain in Hollywood at least five more years under a new contract which will net her $1,500,000.

She married Douglas Fairbanks, jr., in New York in 1929. They obtained a divorce in 1933. Two years later she married Tone.

CALLS COUNCIL

Mayor Sets Session for Friday to Act on New Fire Station.

The question of when Mansfield is going to get a new No. 2 fire station will be presented to city council at a special session called for Friday night, Mayor Claude M. Hunter said today.

Council will be asked to give Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert authority to enter into a contract for the construction of a new station to replace the present structure on North Main street. Plans have already been drafted and call for a one-story brick building to cost less than $8,000.

Besides considering the numerous pieces of minor legislation and petitions on file, council also is expected to receive a report from a special committee which has under advisement a petition from the Richland County Permit Holders' association seeking to extend the night club "curfew" ordinance.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said he hoped to get the group together tonight to draft a recommendation.

City to Be 'Signless' 30 Days While 500 Street Markers Get New 'Coat'

Purchased 3 Years Ago, They'll Be Refinished Without Cost.

If you think you have experienced difficulty trying to find a street in the city because of the illegibility of street signs—just wait and see what's going to happen in the next 30 days.

Because Mansfield is going to be minus about 500 of the signs—they are going back to the factory to be refinished and lettered.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said today that the Lyle Signs Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., from whom the signs were purchased in 1935, have agreed to boil off the enamel and reletter the markers.

The Minneapolis firm, which received $2,500 for 500 signs three years ago, has been trying to sell the city more signs in the last few weeks. After Styert pointed out that before any new business would be considered the company would have to make good on the old order, the concern agreed to refinish the markers without cost to the city.

The only cost to the city will be in removing them and the freight to and from the factory.

The street markers were purchased during the last year of the administration of former Mayor Charles M. Lantz.

They are made of 18 gauge steel, with white letters on a blue background.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce which was behind the move to obtain the markers three years ago, said the signs were to have been guaranteed for five years.

Styert said city street employes within the next few days would start the removal of the signs.

Probes Mass Escape Plot At Ohio Pen

Woodard Says Convicts Who Stabbed Guard Had Six Bombs.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A sweeping investigation of a plot in which an unknown number of convicts planned to bomb their way to freedom from Ohio penitentiary was under way today.

Warden James C. Woodard said six black powder bombs were taken from Clyde Staup, 28, of Allen county, and Charles Menges 28, of Hamilton county, after the men failed in a desperate attempt to break from the prison yesterday.

Shortly afterward four more bombs were found cached in the ventilator of a cell block. Others are being sought.

Woodard said he did not know how many men were involved in the plot, but that "it is certain" Staup and Menges did not make the bombs because they were confined to a section of the penitentiary where materials from which the bombs were fashioned could not be obtained.

Staup was wounded seriously in the groin and Raymond T. Thornton, a guard, was stabbed in the chest during the escape attempt. Staup was expected to recover, while doctors said Thorunton had an "even chance." Menges was held in solitary confinement.

Armed With Knives.

The two convicts were armed with crudely-fashioned knives, with which they cowed three prison authorities, a secretly-made gun loaded with powder and bearings, and their bombs. Woodard said he did not know why the men failed to use their explosives.

Both threatened to explode the bombs as they marched Guard Sherman A. Riley across the prison enclosure. They pushed lighted cigars close to fuses and warned him to make no outcry.

After seizing Riley, the two accosted Guard Fred C. Kaestner, then released both and forced Assistant Deputy Warden William J. Walker to walk with them to the gate of the bull pen. There Guard Elmer Callahan, notified of the disturbance, opened fire. Thornton rushed up but was stabbed as he grappled with the pair.

"I don't know what all is behind it," Woodard said, "but its certain Staup and Menges didn't make their own bombs. But I think the

ACTION ENDS LONG PROBE OF MOVIE STUDIOS

Group Controls 65 Per Cent of Industry, Attorney General Charges.

CLAIMS STARS POOLED

Petition Says Company-Owned Theaters Given Preference on Release Dates.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Cummings charged eight major film companies today with virtually monopolizing the motion picture industry.

He filed civil suit in federal district court in New York asking that the firms be required to divest themselves either of their ownership of theaters or of production and distribution facilities.

The case, among the most comprehensive brought in recent years under the anti-trust laws, was presented after a long investigation by the justice department.

Hold 65 Per Cent Control.

The government's bill of complaint charged the eight companies, 25 subsidiary or affiliated corporations and 132 individuals with controlling about 65 per cent of the nation's moving pictures "from selection of the story to final showing at the theater."

A statement issued at the justice department named as principal defendants:

Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Loew's, Inc.; the Irving Trust company, N. Y., as trustee in bankruptcy for Radio-Keith Orpheum corporation; Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation; Columbia Pictures corporation; Universal corporation and United Artists corporation.

"Restoration of free enterprise and open competition amongst all branches of the motion picture industry is the primary objective of this proceeding," said the statement.

In general, Cummings charged the producers with:

Avoiding competition with each other by "virtual division of territory."

Pooling stars and feature players.

Exchanging directors, technicians and equipment.

Giving preference to company-affiliated theaters in arranging release dates.

Hits 'Block Booking.'

Requiring independent theaters to accept all pictures furnished them, a practice known as "block booking"; to sign inflexible contracts and to accept unfavorable showing dates.

Cummings' announcement said he was following a rather new policy in making public details of the petition, in order to guide business men who seek information on the department's probable views and action in other cases.

HEAT TO BREAK

Showers Due as Mercury Climbs to 86 at Noon.

Scattered thunder showers were expected late this afternoon or tonight to drive the mercury down a bit from the mark of 86 it had reached at noon today. High humidity made it seem even hotter than that, and there were indications that a reading topping yesterday's high of 87 might be recorded before the predicted showers arrived.

The forecast for Ohio indicated that most of the state would be visited with showers either this afternoon, this evening or early tomorrow. The showers were expected to be brief however, and the forecast said the weather would be "generally fair."

Earthquake Kills 20, Spreads Ruin in Ancient Greece

ATHENS —(AP)— The strongest earthquake felt in this country in modern times scattered death and ruin today through ancient Greece.

A tentative casualty list based on fragmentary reports from the stricken areas showed 20 persons killed and at least 100 injured.

The Island of Euboea, north of Athens, suffered most heavily. The quake centered there and in at least two villages nearly every house was shaken down. Reports said the shocks caused fissures into which small buildings toppled.

The government hurried relief by motor truck and railway to the stricken communities. Officials said it was impossible to estimate the material damage.

A succession of minor tremors kept the population in fear of further serious shocks.

Untrue Lad May Not Be Right One

By VIRGINIA LEE

WORRIED does not want me to tell her to stop going with her boy friend although he "steps out" on her — twice, that she knows about, in the last few weeks. She is very much in love with him, you see.

He is very jealous if she mentions any other man, and threatens to cry or kill himself if she gives him up. He will tell her he did a certain thing at a certain time and she finds he did something else. He promises to be true to her and then isn't.

But he is trying to save some money so that they can be married.

I can't see much happiness ahead for you, married to a man who cannot even be true to you during your courting days, my dear Worried. But if you are so in love that you cannot bear to give him up, you will have to reconcile yourself to these little lapses on his part. Something seems to be the matter with his morals, or he wouldn't lie to his best girl and try to deceive her. Don't worry about the suicide threat. He won't take his life —not that type of person. He may cry, of course; that is easy.

But if you want him, darling, why marry him, if he continues to go with you. You may change. The boy is young, although you do not say if he is your age—19 —or older

A READER is the mother of a 17-year-old girl who "never thinks of boy friends. Her books keep her busy." She thinks 19 is plenty old enough for a girl to begin to have boy friends and to entertain her chums in her home.

I agree with her that in a family where the father is ill and the whole family has to work to get the bare necessities of life, there is little prospect of social life, and the whole family should realize it and try to work together to make home pleasant, giving up their own wishes for the present. "Circumstances alter cases," of course, but the average girl in her teens is safer if her parents agree to let her have friends of her own age and to bring them home for her parents to meet. No little girl that age should be allowed to go wherever she pleases and to stay out all hours even when her parents know where she is. But a happy, companionable family life includes outsiders—friends of all the members of the household—in the home.

WATCH THIS COMBINATION

IN THE TOOL-KIT of the expert may be found exact knowledge of many specific combinations of cards. When one of these arrives he knows, without having to figure it out, just what is the best way to handle it in the circumstances present. Many of these can be figured out, however, by the observant cardsman. If a jack is led, thereby placing the ten, and you have the ace-nine in dummy, third hand playing the king to the trick, your correct play from a doubleton is a queen, if you have no other entries in the dummy.

Two rounds of hearts were cashed and the spade Q taken. Now when declarer played the club K, East won with the A and took in two diamond tricks, so that declarer was set one.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which their social, emotional or affectional lives seem to crowd out other interests. In these there may be intriguing, romantic or peculiar aspects which may develop suddenly from obscure sources and have dramatic denouements. Social, cultural and domestic matters engage the paramount attention.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"That will help," I said in answer to Dicky's offer to watch the papers burn in my father's grate so that I might go down and placate Katie. But with my hand on the knob of the door, an inexplicable impulse made me turn back to him.

"You mustn't let me keep you from your journey," I said.

He started as if he were a suddenly roweled horse.

"I'd forgotten," he said dully. Then he fairly blazed sudden determination.

"D'ye think I'm going to leave you to go through this business alone?" he said. "How do you know who's coming, or what you may have on hand when they do get here?"

"You ought to know how glad I'll be to have you here," I answered, "but I understood that it was vital you get back to the city tonight."

"It is," he said, "but not so vital as to involve leaving you flat. Besides, I probably will be able to start some time before morning at that. Hank can sleep in the back of the car, and it won't hurt Bill to stay awake. But one thing's flat. I'm not going to leave here until I see what's doing."

Kiss for Dicky.

I took my hand from the doorknob, turned, went up to him and kissed him swiftly, dodging his embrace as I did so.

"Thank you, Dicky," I whispered and fairly ran out of the room, with my heart chanting a little paean.

But it was not to Katie I went first. I knew that this decision of Dicky's involved more for nervous, highly-strung Hank than he realized, and I hurried directly to the nursery suite, finding Katherine, as I expected, sitting near the door into the hall which she had put ajar so that she could see and hear everything that went on in the corridor.

"You look as if big doings were impending," she said, looking me over with typical shrewdness.

"There are," I answered, and told her quickly of my father's code message announcing the forthcoming arrival of four guests.

"Oh dear!" she said, registering the same swift dismay I had felt. "That means Hank—"

She rose decisively, and moved toward her medicine cabinet.

"Don't you worry your head another minute," she said. "I'll just give Hank a little stronger sedative and he'll be asleep in no time. I'll just cover him lightly and let him sleep in his clothes without moving him from the couch.

Solves Problem.

"After he's had a rest," she went on, "it won't hurt him to drive to the city, no matter how late they go. And as for Bill, he's fit as a fiddle. Nothing could hurt him. But without letting him know what's up, I think I'll tell him I've decided to have Hank sleep a while before he takes the journey, and will advise him to take a nap also, if he can. How's that for a solution of the problem?"

"What your solutions always are, one hundred per cent good," I told her affectionately. "I leave everything upstairs in your hands. And now I must fly to Katie."

"I wish you joy of your job," she said cynically. "If I only could give sedatives to your maid and your mother-in-law, you and I could go down to the kitchen and rustle up something scruptuous, in between sessions with the barred room. Incidentally, why the barred room?"

I shook my head as I went out of the room, for I had no notion of why my father should specify the barred room, the one which always had belonged to Mary, and upon which we had placed bars when the menace of Jeck Leslie loomed large upon her horizon.

But the question caromed constantly around my mind as I made my way timorously to my imminent encounter with Katie.

Home Service

Background Knowledge Gives Person Poise.

Gain Knowledge at Home.

Jim's still this side of thirty, but he already has an important executive job. And Betty, his attractive secretary, is so capable she's really her boss's right hand man.

Neither of these young people could go to college. But they're both convinced they owe their success to a cultural background acquired at home.

Because of the absorbing reading course he follows in economics, Jim always holds his own with older business men when present-day problems are discussed.

He's invited out to dinner with the most interesting people because his knowledge of modern art and philosophy makes him a stimulating companion.

Combining pleasure with business, Betty studies famous characters in great novels. This helps her to understand better the people she meets in daily life. Now she's taken up psychology, too.

Our 32-page booklet shows you how to start and carry out an engrossing, valuable program of home study. It includes book lists recommended by the Committee on College Reading.

Send 10c for your copy of "Build Your Own College Background" to The Mansfield News-Journal, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

Braised Liver — Baked Potatoes
Green Peas
Watercress — Green Onions
Berry Cottage Pudding — Tea

The other day I had dinner in a small town restaurant, and was served chicken livers and bacon. They were hot, well cooked and delicious. The bacon was not as well cooked as the livers. I happen to like my bacon crisp. This braised liver dish is a nice variation of the usual liver and bacon, and seems appropriate for warmer weather. You can use any berries for this cottage pudding recipe if you do not want to use or cannot get strawberries.

Today's Recipes.

BRAISED LIVER — Brown a sliced onion and three-fourths cup of chopped celery in bacon fat. Dredge a chunky piece of liver with flour and brown this in the fat. Place in a baking dish, season with salt and pepper, cover with bacon slices, add one-half cup hot water, cover and cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour. Remove cover for last fifteen minutes of cooking so that bacon on top will brown.

STRAWBERRY COTTAGE PUDDING — Three tablespoons butter, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup milk, one egg, one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one cup fresh strawberries. Cream butter and sugar, add vanilla, milk and egg. Beat for one minute. Add flour, baking powder and salt, mixed and sifted. Beat for two minutes. Add strawberries. Fill greased muffin pans half full and bake in moderate oven for twenty minutes. Serve with plain or whipped cream. Serves four or five.

Saturday's 'Soap Box Derby Day' at Madison Matinee

Saturday will be "Soap Box Derby day" at the weekly Kid's show at the Madison theater

Manager Bill Dworski said a special film on the Derby will be presented in conjunction with the regular show staged at 2:15 p. m.

The film pictures highlights of derbies similar to the one to be staged by The News-Journal in cooperation with the Y. M. C. A. and Mohican Chevrolet company on Sturges hill, Wednesday, Aug. 3.

Dworski also stated that a driver for the Warner Bros. entry in The News-Journal race will be selected at the matinee. Boys interested in building (with major parts furnished) and driving the entry are asked to register in the lobby on the day of the show.

The feature film for the kid's show will be "Border G-Men" starring George O'Brien.

Summit Court Residents Ask For Improvement of Street.

City council had before it today a request from the property owners on Summit court seeking the improvement of the street.

In a petition filed with Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., the property owners ask council to pass the necessary legislation to correct the condition of the roadway which they said was settling and allowing storm water to stand in the street for long periods, causing "unsanitary and unsightly conditions."

THIS AND THAT: Seldom has a movie star been so badly battered as Marlene Dietrich in this week's issue of a national photo magazine. It shows pictures of her that she probably wishes had never been taken, makes her appear mean, little, patronizing, difficult to handle and a lot of other things. It doesn't, however deny that she is a good actress . . . John Barrymore will do the Big Apple in "Hold That Co-Ed." Probably will do a swell job of it . . . Looks as if Warner Brothers were mad at Dick Powell, the kind of pap they give him for stories and songs. What chance has the lad in the kind of stuff he has been doing? . . . From advance reports on "Paris Honeymoon," Danielle Darrieux—or however you spell it—promises to be a hit and a lasting one in American movies. . . . .

Love and the Sea.

Wallace Beery, that dramatic favorite of thousands, supported by Frank Morgan, soft-voiced screw-ball of radio and screen, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Beal and Jessie Ralph brings "Port of Seven Seas" to the Ohio tomorrow. This is a moving tale of the sea with a Marseilles water-front as the setting.

Madelon, played by Maureen, and Marius, portrayed by Beal, are madly in love, but the call of the sea lures Marius. He ships on the Malaise for a two or three year voyage. In the interval the lovely Madelon marries Panissex acted by Morgan. Upon the return of Marius the plot, melodramatically, thickens, but in the end Madelon is able to make Marius see the situation clearly and he returns to his old love—the sea.

Romance and Drama.

The bond between a faithful dog and his master, and a woman's loyalty to them both, are threaded through the dramatic story of "Blind Alibi" which brings Richard Dix to the Madison today for two days. Whitney Bourne plays the feminine lead and Eduardo Ciannelli is the major menace as the head of a blackmailing gang. Dix, as a penniless young sculptor, who sets out on a mission for his sister, enlists the aid of a "seeing eye" dog. He dons a pair of smoked glasses, lets the dog lead him, and pretends to be blind in order to carry out his mission—that of locating incriminating letters. The story is dramatic, with a counter current of romance and gallantry.

New York Rodeo.

Several years ago an enterprising producer decided to bring the Western rodeos to blase New York and as a result they are staged every year in Madison Square garden. All of the famous riders, ropers and bulldoggers come out of the West to take part in the big eastern rodeo. One of these marks the beginning of the action in "Ryhthm On The Range," a Bing Crosby picture of several seasons ago, which is being brought back to the Majestic this week. Bing comes East to represent his ranch in the rodeo, meets the girl on the way back home and the ranch is turned into something of a vaudeville show, what with Bob Burns, Martha Ray and Frances Farmer. The second feature is "13 Hours By Air."

New York Heartbeat.

Author of the sensational "Five Star Final," memorable picturization of yellow journalism, Louis Welzenkorn has turned out another newspaper tale, intermingled with the heartbeats of New York City. It is "King of Newsboys" with Lew Ayers, Helen Mack and Victor Varconi. The story deals with a boy and girl from the slums who are fearful lest their love chain them to the surroundings in which they grew up, and so they turn to others who can help them get away from their early life. The picture is a Ritz attraction, along with "Love and Hisses" with Ben Bernie, Walter Winchell, Simone Simon and others.

Present Old Melodrama.

Tonight and tomorrow night the Madge Kinsey Players will present one of the "classics" of the days when melodrama flourished and stock companies appeared in every city and town. "Tempest and Sunshine," dramatized from the Mary J. Holmes tear-jerker, paper-back novel of the same name, will be presented in the Kinsey's tent theater on West Second street.

Those who are familiar with the story will recall that it is about two sisters, Tempest, noted for her temper and evil disposition; and Sunshine, who lived up to her name.

An interesting feature of the presentation here is that the third generation of Kinseys will play to the two title roles—Bette Kinsey Graf and Jean Kinsey Graf, the former playing Tempest and the latter Sunshine. Their mother, Madge Kinsey, will play a blackface character role.

Friday and Saturday the company plays "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em," a comedy.

SETS UP WHEAT LOAN PROGRAM

County Soils Committee Says Credit Applications to Be Received in Next 10 Days.

Appointment of a sealer and inspector to handle federal wheat loans in Richland county under the Commodity Credit program will be made this week and loan applications will be received within the next 10 days, Guy Taylor, chairman of the county soils conservations committee, said today.

The federal loan program provides for the borrowing of funds up to 70 cents per bushel, with the farmer giving wheat as security. The 70-cent rate applies to No. 2 wheat and is available to farmers who have not exceeded the total federal soil depleting allottment for their farms by more than 105 per cent.

Loans will be available until Dec. 31, 1938, and will mature May 31, 1939, Taylor said.

An inspector and sealer to be appointed by the county conservation committee and approved by the state committee, will inspect the wheat offered as security for loans and determine if storage facilities on the farm are adequate.

A sample of the grain must be sent to the state committee for inspection and approved before the loan is granted. Grain must not have more than 13 per cent moisture content.

Wheat growers who obtain loans will be re-imbursed at the rate of seven cents per bushel for storage on farms if the wheat is delivered to the Commodity Credit corporation at the maturity of the loan.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Bridge playing, according to Ely Culbertson, is a "depression pastime." During a depression, the expert said, "people have more time to play bridge, and they find it less expensive than other amusements."

Morgan, Charging TVA Wasted Millions, Back on Stand

CLAIMS BOARD 'GUESSED' IN FIXING RATES

Testifies at Inquiry That Lilienthal Failed to Show Data by 'Experts.'

(By United Press)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, resumes testifying before a congressional investigating committee today to amplify his charges that the other directors had wasted millions of dollars and had based the "yardstick" power rates upon a "guess."

The "guesser," he said, was Director David E. Lilienthal.

"You were the chairman," Sen. Lynn Frazier, R., N. D., interrupted Dr. Morgan. "Do you want us to understand that you accepted these rates, which are vital not only to TVA but to the whole country, without knowing how they were arrived at?"

Told About 'Experts.'

"I asked Mr. Lilienthal how they were arrived at and he said he would give me the report of the survey by the committee of experts," Dr. Morgan replied. "He never did, but after a few months he said the city of Tupelo, Miss., was making money on the rates—that the rates were too high. I took his word for it, but after a while I began to have misgivings about it."

Dr. Morgan had said that at a board meeting, Lilienthal had admitted that the rates had been a "lucky guess."

The "yardstick" was one of the two main objectives of the New Deal agency. The other was flood control. TVA was designed by congress to build dams on the Tennessee river to control the valley's flood waters, to generate electrical power from the accessible water pressure at these dams, and to distribute the power at the cheapest possible rates. These rates were the "yardstick," by which the fairness of charges made by private utility concerns would be gauged.

Dr. Morgan said that so far as he could learn, Lilienthal based the "yardstick" on the Tacoma, Wash., public power plant rates. He said this comparison was unsatisfactory to him, because the Tacoma plant had been in operation 40 years, had amortized its capital investments, and could base its rates mostly on operating costs, and that it paid lower wages and enjoyed a cheaper source of power than TVA.

He said there had been dissension among him and the other two directors, Lilienthal and Dr. H. A. Morgan, since their first board meeting in 1933; that the other two overrode him, shared the authority between themselves, and wasted millions of dollars.

Simone's Golden Key Secret Will Remain 'Mystery'

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— The secret of who received Simone Simon's gold apartment keys lay buried today for at least ten years by court order.

Her former secretary, Sandra Martin, who could tell, will go to prison if she does.

This was the condition imposed by Superior Judge A. A. Scott in suspending a three to 42-year sentence of Miss Martin for forging the film star's name to $662.50 in checks.

As it is, the 32-year-old woman must stay in jail another six months before being released on 10 years' probation.

Miss Martin, while awaiting trial, had said her pert, pouting employer had given two gold keys to her residence to friends. Who received them never was disclosed.

Strikers Riot, Iowa Guardsmen Called Out

Up and Down THE STREET

A visit to Charles Mill dam near Mifflin today renewed memories for Fred R. Zellner, county clerk of courts, who is the chief Mansfield historian at the courthouse. Zellner says he remembers when Mifflin was called Petersburg and a small dam near the village was known as Petersburg dam. Back in those days, however, there was no federal project in the county and the lake behind the dam was little more than a frog pond.

Party lines seem to have been let down this year in Mansfield. The other night Earl McFarland, who aspires to the Republican state central committee, was seen driving around with a banner on the radiator of his car which said: "Ralph Lutz for County Representative." Since Lutz is a Democrat and McFarland a Republican, there was something of a commotion. But it was one of those practical jokes that Amima club members play on each other once in a while. At the Amima picnic last Saturday someone took the banner off Lutz's car and put it on McFarland's.

Mansfield's representative in the All-American Soap Box finals in Akron in mid-August probably will be one of few in the parade preceding the eliminations not draped with a city flag. Officials of the Mansfield Derby have been requested by national race authorities to forward a copy of the design and color of the Mansfield city flag so that a replica can be made for The News-Journal derby winner. But after some investigation they learned that Mansfield does not have a flag or crest of any kind that is the official emblem of the city.

Don't be alarmed if you see a candid camera fan lying on his back on the grass at Central park—or maybe a dozen of such people attempting to stand on their heads squinting through the sights—they're only the camera enthusiasts of the Mansfield Photographic society on their first picture assignment—each trying to outdo the other for an unusual shot.

SWIM FRIDAY

1,000 Expected to Take Part in Playground Event.

Some 1,000 children from Mansfield's 12 playgrounds are expected to gather Friday at Liberty park for an all-day outing and swimming carnival.

The carnival will be the first special activity planned by Playground Director Al Fendrick to bring together all children from the 12 city playlots.

The carnival will start at 10 a. m. and will include 14 different water events, sponsored by Russell VonWieder, swimming instructor at the Liberty pool, and Robert Martin. Ribbons will be awarded winners.

Children will be accompanied to the park by the 30 supervisors, according to Fendrick. The children and supervisors will take their lunches and have a picnic dinner on the grounds. The afternoon will be spent playing games and swimming.

BLASTS LABOR'S DAVEY BLESSING

Sawyer Aid Terms Governor '100 Per Cent Enemy' of Ohio Employes.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The report of Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary of the Ohio Federation of Labor, describing Governor Davey's labor record as "100 per cent," was vigorously assailed today by Byrl Whitney, educational director of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Trainmen.

Whitney also is chairman of the Sawyer-for-Governor labor committee. His attack on the Donnelly statement was released by Sawyer headquarters.

"How can Tom Donnelly or anyone else call Governor Davey's labor record 100 per cent?" Whitney asked. "A man who used the national guard to break a strike (little steel) is a 100 per cent enemy of labor, and that's only one thing.

"How can you call a man a friend of labor when, with his permission, women working under civil service are marked on a secret black list with the words, 'Work her to death and get rid of her.'

"Was it the act of a friend of labor when the present governor used his power to delay the enactment of the state unemployment insurance law, needed to make that portion of the federal social security act operative in Ohio, so that thousands of unemployed workers are now deprived of the benefits which might have been theirs?"

REQUESTS FOR PWA LOANS DROP

Cities Find It Cheaper To Borrow Funds At Home.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Public works administration officials noted today a sharp decrease in the demand for federal loans to supplement WPA grants.

Many states and cities sponsoring PWA projects, they said, found it cheaper to borrow from private sources than to pay the 4 per cent interest charged by PWA.

Under the new program, PWA has made $253,400,053 in grants and has loaned $29,553,000.

LINK GANGLAND SLAYING WITH HOLD-UP WHICH COST 2 LIVES

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN — Authorities recorded today the gangland "ride" slaying of Walter Masulik, 35, as a probable sequel to a frustrated East Palestine holdup May 16 in which two gunmen were slain by police bullets.

A body pierced by revolver bullets and shotgun pellets, found yesterday in a roadside ditch near Hubbard, was identified by Police Captain Charles Richmond as that of Masulik.

Masulik had been sought as a suspect in the gun battle at the East Palestine Eagles' lodge between five men and officers who, forewarned, had set a trap for them.

Richmond said Masulik's body apparently was tossed into the ditch from an automobile. Residents of the vicinity, seven miles from here, reported hearing shots about 1 a. m. yesterday.

Slain in the East Palestine fray were John Yourko, 22, of Youngstown, and Mike Lapushansky, 22, of Girard. Joe Burski, 25, of Youngstown, was seized later. The fifth suspect still is hunted.

Burski pleaded innocent yesterday at Lisbon to charges of assault to commit robbery and of breaking and entering. He is accused of assaulting Sergt. M. A. Mock of the state highway patrol, who assisted in the police ambush.

Mock was compelled at gun point to leave his place of hiding and lie on the floor of the lodge as the battle broke out.

SIGN AGAIN

Dominion Electric and Union Renew Contract.

The renewal of its working agreement with the Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company, Inc., was announced today by Local 706, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers at America.

The contract, effective as of July 1, was signed by company and union officials yesterday.

According to union officials, the contract continues present wage levels for the coming year without reduction. The working week is set at five days, with Saturday work allowed at time-and-a-half rates. Maximum working hours have been reduced from 50 to 45 a week. The contract also includes seniority provisions.

Approximately 200 plant workers are affected by the contract, which covers all employes engaged in production except polishers, buffers, platers and helpers who are affiliated with the A. F. of L. The U. E. R. W. A. is a CIO affiliate.

The agreement was accepted by Nathan Lifson, treasurer of the firm, while James O. Lewis, acting president of local 706, and Edwin Beal, International representative of the U. E. R. W. A., signed for the workers.

20 INJURED IN FIGHT, MARTIAL LAW ORDERED

Maytag Workers Clash While Troops Set Up Guard; One Stabbed, Deputy Beaten.

(By Associated Press)

NEWTON, Ia.—At least 20 men suffered injuries here today in street fights which broke out in the immediate vicinity of the Maytag Washing Machine company factory.

One man was reported stabbed and a special deputy sheriff badly beaten and his gun taken away.

When a fight broke out about 300 feet south of one of the national guard scout cars, the guardsmen pulled up and cocked the guns mounted on the armored vehicle.

Troopers formed a loose line from sidewalk to sidewalk and drove the crowd away from the plant.

Strike 10 Weeks Old.

Iowa National Guardsmen rolled into Newton this morning to establish martial law at the scene of the 10-week-old strike.

Following a proclamation issued last night by Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel, Adjt. Gen. Charles Grahl mobilized a battalion of 250 guardsmen at Des Moines for duty here.

The guardsmen were dispatched at the request of Mayor George Campbell and Sheriff Earl Shields, who conferred with the governor at Des Moines.

Halting of three trucks carrying washing machine parts on the outskirts of Newton yesterday precipitated the request for troops.

Between 400 and 500 men returned to work in the plant Monday, passing through CIO union picket lines, after the company refused to accept the decision of a strike arbitration board appointed by the governor.

Work had started in the plant and completed washing machines were rolling off the production lines for the first time since May 9 when the truck-halting incident occurred.

The governor announced that the troops would take over law enforcement here and said that the plant would be closed. The strikers walked out in protest to a 10 per cent wage cut 10 weeks ago and held the plant in a sitdown for 10 days.

MORE FIRST AID

Seventh Station, First in Private Home, Opens Thursday.

The first Richland county Red Cross highway first aid station to be located in a private home will be opened tomorrow night at the L. O. Shellhaas residence on the Ashland road.

All other stations are located at gasoline filling stations. First aid equipment and supplies will be available at the Shellhaas home at the east end of the Windsor "cut-off."

Seven persons in the neighborhood have been trained to administer first aid after accidents, and certificates from national Red Cross will be presented to them tomorrow night by Floyd Hoover who was their instructor. W. J. Locke, county vice-chairman of the chapter, will be the speaker at the opening. A demonstration of a first aid case will be made and the Red Cross safety film, "Why Not Live?" will be shown.

The Shellhaas station is the seventh in the county. The eighth and last station for this year's program will be opened in Shenandoah next week.

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday from the Henderson and Lutz funeral home for Amos Winters Ruhl, 88, retired Morrow county carpenter, who died at his daughter's home, Mrs. George Peppard, 715 Prospect street, Tuesday afternoon following a six months' illness.

Survivors include his daughter with whom he made his home; one half-brother, Benton Ruhl; two half-sisters, Mrs. Louis Fegley, of Morrow county, and Mrs. Norman Lane of Chesterville.

Burial will be in River Cliff cemetery at Mt. Gilead.

PET SKUNK LOST

And Police Are Baffled Because of Lack of 'Clues.'

CHICAGO —(AP)— Policemen told Miss Rose Johnson they were without the usual clues in their search for her pet skunk, Willie, which escaped from her boarding kennel.

They advised her the chances of capturing a deodorized skunk were virtually nil.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Mr. Roosevelt Seemingly Thinks He Is Entitled To Special Privileges

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I find that my objections to Mr. Roosevelt's reign have to do more with his double standard than with the projects of his administration. Perhaps I am a lint picker, but it does seem to me that the president of the United States should practice his own preaching and should not criticize in others faults, errors and intentional fouls of which he is guilty himself.

Or, better stated, that he should refrain from conduct which he reproves in others.

Thus I would hold him to the passage of his fireside chat of last winter in which he urges self-restraint and moderation of speech on the rest of us and would use that remark to challenge his recent denunciation of all those who oppose him as copperheads. A president who counsels his subjects to keep their punches up and break clean has no right to be calling law-abiding citizens copperheads.

* * *

I could here stem off into an argument that the copperheads of the Civil war were not as bad as they were painted and that if their policy had not been totally rejected the south would have been spared a large degree of that desolation wrought by the war and the carpetbaggers which leaves the southern tier today, in Mr. Roosevelt's own words, the No. 1 economic problem of the nation. The program of indignity, graft and persecution which was adopted as the alternative is now everywhere recognized to have been disgraceful folly.

The president readily draws on the Civil war for analogies, but I hope he does not mean that those who oppose his New Deal are to be similarly oppressed.

* * *

It seems but yesterday that the Democrats and much of the population were chortling over the smearing of Herbert Hoover, and Mr. Roosevelt was joyously accepting the political benefit of the smear campaign.

It wasn't quite fair, for although Mr. Hoover undoubtedly was a hidebound president, we all know he didn't make the panic, because he was in office only a few months when the hoops busted. And certainly he cannot be adjudged a bad American on his life record.

* * *

But now that the business affairs of the president's No. 1 son and secretary are being called into question that is dirty pool, as though it were possible to smear anyone with blameless conduct.

It has long seemed to me that, as a demonstration of fairness and a renunciation of special privilege, the president should have prevailed on his son James to insist on a detailed, expert analysis of his income. The president subjected other persons to this rather unpleasant ordeal in the tax inquiry, and more recently he authorized the lobby committee to do the same to any witness called before that body of the senate.

* * *

Now, Jimmy was a lobbyist in the fight on the reorganization bill, the contest which caused the lobby investigation, but he hasn't even been called to tell of his lobbying for the bill and, of course, his income hasn't been questioned at all.

Another deal in which I think he was arrogantly inconsistent was the appointment of a relative of the president to a created job in the state department at $6,000 a year decorating American embassies and legations abroad. The amount is only a trifle against a background of billions, but $6,000 is a large salary nevertheless—enough to absorb the income taxes of a hundred citizens in the modest brackets, and the job is one which a president committed to a program of economy—do you remember his economy pledge?—would be unable to justify to those hundred taxpayers.

* * *

And then there was that dual character which he manufactured for himself recently. As president he is not asking the citizens to vote one way or another but as head of the Democratic party he claims the right to exhort. I see no reason why as president he should hold aloof, but inasmuch as he himself says the president shouldn't interfere it strikes me as plain dishonesty, suggestive of the reasoning of a Goebbels or any Communist, to say that the head of the Democratic party divests himself of the presidential office and power when he takes the stump. I don't believe he believes that himself.

* * *

All of this sort of thing leads me to think that Mr. Roosevelt deeply believes that he and his family and his party are entitled to special privileges and we are not bound to observe the rules which he lays down for others.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

By DAN DE LUCE
(Stand-in for Robbin Coons)

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Boyer, memorable as Napoleon on the screen last year, meets another kind of Waterloo this week as a French jewel thief in "Algiers."

As the gendarmes would say—cherchez la femme! And that's easy to do. The woman in the case is Hedy Lamarr, sultry-eyed importation from Vienna.

Miss Lamarr, then known as Hedy Kiesler, won a Hollywood contract by swimming nude in a foreign film which was called, logically enough, "Ecstasy." Her name changed, her wardrobe multiplied to gorgeous proportions, she makes an exciting American debut.

Banalized by travel folders, North Africa's weird mystery creeps by camera-magic into "Algiers." It is the story of Pepe le Moko (Boyer), fabulous and fantastic criminal, who flees Paris with a fortune in gems, holes up in the native quarter—the casbah—of Algiers, and mocks the fuming French detectives who try to smoke him out.

Miss Lamarr is his society light o' love. Sigrid Gurie, the Brooklyn Norwegian, plays his native sweetheart under dark makeup. Even clever Pepe has no answer to the eternal triangle.

For the sinister mood of the thieves' African capital, credit Joseph Calleia, Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart and Johnny Downs with finely shadowed characterizations. Definitely, "Algiers" is "different."

* * *

It is a re-make of a French movie and on this week's list is another twice-told tale. The Hollywood success of yesteryear, "Gallant Lady," come back as "Always Goodbye," with Barbara Stanwyck in the mother-role created by Ann Harding.

Tailored by Director Sidney Lanfield almost along comedy lines, the new version introduces a curly-haired moppet, John Russell, who'll make women fans want to hug him.

Dimpled John is Miss Stanwyck's screen son, born out of wedlock. She gives him up so he may have the security of a home and a name, but they meet again on a note of fun and heartbreak.

John's foster father, Ian Hunter, is about to be snared by a fortune-hunter, Lynn Bari. Miss Stanwyck has the problem of how to reclaim her child.

Zany Cesar Romero, flaunting his white-toothed smile, supplies most of the zest as a fast-talking count to whom all women are colossally beautiful. Herbert Marshall plays Miss Stanwyck's loyal suitor.

* * *

"Tropic Holiday" is no vacation for Martha Raye—she has to fight a bull. As a lady matador, she saves this Mexican musical by Paramount from mediocrity.

Her big mouth buttoned up, Martha is a hi-de-ho shouter no longer. When she horns in on the bullring to free Bob Burns from a Latin jail, she has her funniest scene in many months.

Aside from Martha, Bob and the bull, "Tropic Holiday" also has sweet music by Mexican composer Augustin Lara. His songs supply Dorothy Lamour with her best moments. But without a sarong, it's a less interesting Lamour, though Ray Milland doesn't seem to mind.

"Fast Company," with Melvyn Douglas and Florence Rice, speeds along through a series of connubial cut-ups patterned after the Powell-Loy "Thin Man" model. As an innovation, Claire Dodd is the "other woman."

Sports Writers Get Break at Stadium

Erection of New Press Box to Eliminate Some Difficulties In Covering Tyger Grid Games.

Tennis Association to Supervise Play In City Planned by Followers of Court Sport.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

SPORTS WRITERS attached to grid clubs on the Mansfield high school schedule will probably be glad to learn that the board of education has authorized the construction of a new press box at Stadium field.

There has been much criticism of the antiquated coop on the east side of the field by visiting scribes, and its abandonment in favor of a box on the other side of the gridiron should make their future visits more delightful.

Ruth

The old press box, erected when the stadium was built, was not only too small, but uncomfortable. Not more than half a dozen writers could be accommodated comfortably in the coop, and on days when big games were being played the writers were packed in the small quarters like sardines, making it almost impossible to scribble notes.

The old press box also provided a poor view of the field. It was virtually impossible to follow play in the second half of any game when the sun started to settle in the northwest. The glare was blinding, and, consequently, it was necessary to guess more often than not in identifying players and computing yardage.

Spectators seated in front of the stall also made it difficult for the scribes to follow action when excitement broke loose on spectacular plays. They shut off the writers view when they rose to their feet in front of the low box. This confusion added to the difficulties encountered by writers at the games.

These conditions will be improved by the construction of the new press box, and the board of education can feel assured that its action will be appreciated.

Thornton Moore Behind Tennis Movement.

THE sport of tennis is growing by leaps and bounds in this city. Not only are there more players in the city this year, but also more courts.

But followers of the game still insist that tennis interest in Mansfield can be increased, and, judging from what we hear, an attempt will be made to create a bigger army of players.

Present plans call for the formation of an organization to supervise the sport in the city.

Thornton Moore, one of the outstanding racquet wielders in the city, is the guiding hand behind the movement, and he has enlisted a sufficient number of enthusiasts to make the organization a virtual certainty.

There are 17 courts in the city, and the supervision of competition on these lots by an association of the type being encouraged by Moore would do much to popularize the sport, we believe.

Moore is a member of the Woodland Tennis club, which is the only active net organization in the city at present.

Babe Ruth Adds New Coals to Controversy.

BABE RUTH has added new coals to the league-against-league controversy which has been raging in magazines and newspapers since last winter.

Ruth, now in the National league as coach of the hapless Brooklyn Dodgers, declined to be drawn completely into the battle, but he indicated a preference for the junior circuit in which he garnered his greatest glory.

So as not to arouse his National league brethren, Ruth said "there's no question about the National league using more inside baseball strategy. But," he added, "if you're basing judgment of the two circuits on batting averages, the American league has the edge." And, as we see it, that's giving the American league a vote.

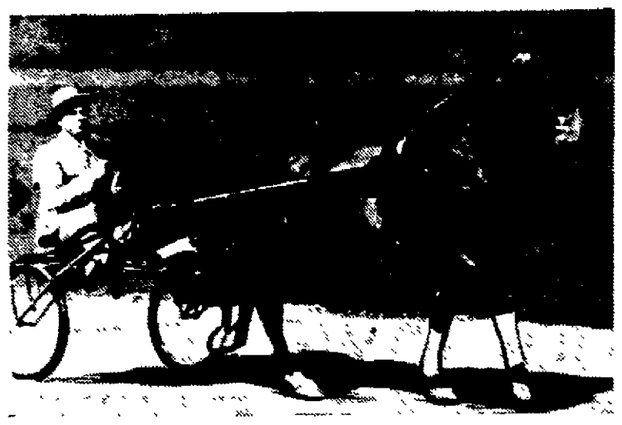
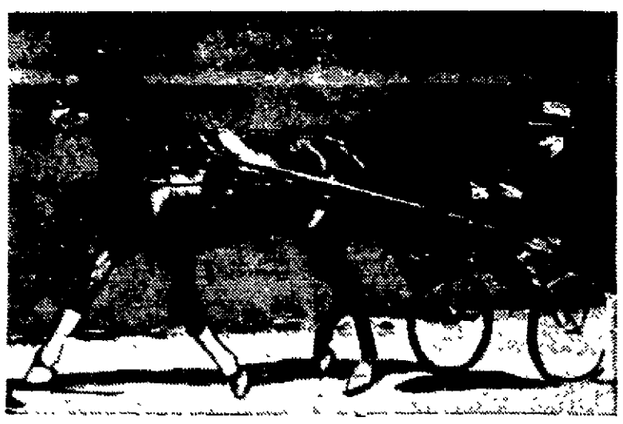
Carry Dickson-Nail Banner In Fair Race Meet Next Week





Here are a trio of Mansfield-owned trotters that will compete with upwards of 200 other speedsters at the three-day harness race meeting opening at the Richland county fairground next week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Harnessed and pulling the sulkies in warm up rounds at the track are Princess Guy, Frisco Watts and Grace Crispin, all of the Roy Dickson-E. S. Nail stable of Mansfield.

Princess Guy is shown at the left with George Reynolds, veteran Mansfield reinsman and trainer, seated in the sulky. Princess Guy is a green trotter and a full sister to Grace Crispin shown at the extreme right. She will be entered in the 2:25 trot during the race program here.

Next is Frisco Watts with a record of 2:05 entered in the 2:12 trot. In the sulky is Kenneth Cartnal, a Mansfielder, son of Gabe Cartnal, veteran trainer of Hanover, O., who has brought his string to the Mansfield oval from the Grand Circuit meeting at North Randall. Young Cartnal serves as a sub on the sulky seat for the benefit of The News-Journal cameraman.

Comes a champion next in Grace Crispin, shown with George Bayesel holding the reins. Grace Crispin was the champion green trotter of the 1937 racing season. She has a mark of 2:02½ and is entered in the 2:21 trot here.

Grace Crispin was trained by Wayne Smart, third among the winning race drivers of 1937. Smart drove 109 winners in 267 heats.

The tight race in the city recreation Junior baseball league remained unchanged after yesterday's games at the Fairground.

The first place Athletics and Tigers, who are only a half game behind, turned in victories again yesterday, the A's trimming the Browns, 7 to 3, and the Bengals toping the Yanks, 11 to 2. The Browns' defeat was their ninth straight.

Freiheit permitted only one hit and struck out 11 as he stopped the Yanks, and Phillips gave the Browns only three blows. Martin of the Athletics hit a home run.

It Won't Be Vitt's Fault If Tribe Fails to Win Flag

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—If you are a retired boxing champ, don't sink your savings in a restaurant . . . Tony Canzoneri tried it and blew his dough . . . so did Benny Leonard. . . . Latest example is our old pal, Jim Braddock . . . his swanky place on West 49th street went the way of the others. . . . Jack Dempsey alone made a real go of it and he had a backer with plenty behind him.

* * *

Bill Daley, manager of Maurice Strickland, the Australian heavyweight, is in Toronto to complete arrangements for the Sept. 2 scrap with Tommy Farr. . . . Texas thinks it has sent as many ball players to the majors as any other state. . . . Two weeks ago we chronicled Burgess Whitehead had just finished playing four ball games (including a double header) and was set to join the Giants soon. . . . Now comes word it will be at least two years before Burgess gets back into big league togs.

It wasn't the matter of a $500 bonus that kept Bill Broome, the Lockhart, S. C., pitching sensation, out of the Red Sox fold, was it? . . . Here it is July 20 and the Cleveland sports writers have not been after Oscar Vitt's scalp. . . . If that isn't a record you can sue us. . . . Feller is just another fellow on the bench of the Cleveland Indians. . . . Vitt has the whole team hustling and that's what counts. . . . The Injuns may not win the pennant, but it won't be Vitt's fault.

* * *

Softball . . . You wouldn't believe it—is one of Miami's top summer sports . . . That item we had about the Pirates going to Miami to train created quite a furore . . . Pittsburgh can't believe it and neither can the town out west where the Bucs have been doing their spring prepping . . . but it's so, boys.

'Courage, Brains Beat Yanks'-Vitt

Harder Hurls Superb Ball to Win Series Opener; Allen to Take Turn In Twin Bill Today.

By HENRY McLEMORE, United Press Staff Correspondent.

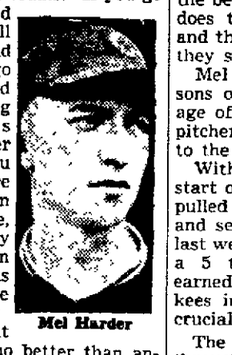
NEW YORK—It was as hot as the inside of a baked potato in the Cleveland dressing room at Yankee stadium.

Everyone seemed to have but a single thought, and that was to get out of this fireless cooker of a room. Everyone, that is, except one man. He sat on the bench in front of his locker and to judge by the expression on his face he was as comfortable and contented as though seated in a moonlit, breeze-swept garden.

The man was Oscar Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians. His team had just come in off the field after besting the Yankees, 5 to 1, in the first game of a series that may come close to deciding the American league race. The victory lifted the Indians to within half a game of the leading Yankees, and Vitt was supremely happy.

"Can Be Licked."

"Just like I've been saying all along," he said as he thumped me on the back. "Yessir, those Yankees can be licked by a team that has courage and brains. If you go out there afraid of 'em they'll knock your head off. If you go out there and feed 'em nothing but fast balls they'll butcher you. But if you just go out there and look 'em square in the eye, and then play smart, you can win. Boy, was that a good one to take today."



Mel Harder

Knowing that one game was no better than another in the percentage table, I inquired as to why he was so pleased.

"If you had been managing this club for the past month you'd know," he sighed. "Do you know that this is the first easy game this club has played in a month? Ever since June 17 we've had nothing but those soul tearers that were won and lost in the eighth and ninth innings. I'm telling you we lost some that were so tough to lose that I was afraid to go to my hotel room alone. Honest, I was afraid I would jump out the window."

It would have been an unfortunate loss for Cleveland had Vitt leaped in one of those moments of despair, because he has done a magnificent job of managing the Indians. A year ago at this time the Indians, with practically the same lineup, were in fifth place, 10 games behind their present pace. The morale of the team, under the managership of Steve O'Neill, was low and there was little or no team work. The work of Bob Feller, the ace of the team, was impaired by the fact that he was handled like a freak, and shown only on special occasions when his appearance meant extra money in the till.

Vitt has straightened out this mess. The team is hustling. The morale is high. Feller is pitching for the good of the team and not the treasury. And Vitt is the boss.

Johnny Allen, the man who hates the Yankees, will pitch the first game of the double-header the Indians play with the Yanks today and he is liable to win, as he is the best pitcher in baseball. If he does the Indians will be on top, and this time don't be surprised if they stay there.

Mel Harder, a veteran of 10 seasons of major league play at the age of 28, today stood out as the pitcher who may pace the Indians to the pennant.

With the club off to a disastrous start on the present road trip Vitt pulled Harder out of the bullpen and sent him against Washington last week. Harder responded with a 5 to 1 victory and thereby earned the right to face the Yankees in the opening contest of a crucial series yesterday.

The curve ball artist came through with another great mound effort as the Indians beat the powerful Yankees.

Harder pitched great ball from start to finish yesterday. He permitted the slugging Yankees, who had won their last 16 games at home, only six hits.

New York's three runs were all the result of home runs. George Selkirk slammed out a circuit drive in the second inning and Bill Dickey came through with one in the ninth with Tommy Henrich on base.

Harder set seven of the New Yorkers down on strikes. He issued only one base on balls.

Cleveland drove into the scoring column in the second inning when Earl Averill homered and then clinched the decision in the fourth when they scored three times on three hits, a walk, a sacrifice and an infield out.

Cleveland hammered "Bump" Hadley and Steve Sundra for nine hits. Lyn Lary and Jeff Heath set the pace with two safeties each.

New York baseball fans apparently took it for granted that the Indians would collapse when facing the Yankees as the battle for first place attracted a disappointing crowd of 7,528.

PROFIT-TAKING REDUCES BRISK OPENING PACE

Steel Shares Lead Decline; Rails, Aviations, Liquors Display Strength.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(AP)—A spurt in electric power stocks helped brace the market today after it had been jolted suddenly by a break in movie shares on the federal government's action to separate theater ownership from film production.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market ran into some profit-taking today in the wake of yesterday's broad advance to new highs for the year.

Most pivotal groups dropped behind minus signs, although a few, notably rails, aviations and liquor shares, displayed independent strength. Price changes were limited to a point or so, and trading quieted down after a brisk opening when the ticker ran 2 minutes late.

Steel shares, dominate factors in the rise through the two preceding sessions, led today's reaction. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel and Crucible slipped more than a point and Youngstown about 2 before support was met in the second hour.

Chrysler, Standard Oil of N. Y., Allied Chemical and Union Carbide were among the stocks to show extreme losses of a point or more. General Motors, Anaconda, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward and Johns-Manville suffered large fractional declines.

Liquor shares came forward in the second hour. Schenley and National Distillers each climbing more than a point. Dougles gained as much in the aviations, while United Aircraft and Boeing advanced small fractions. U. S. Gypsum spurted 3 points.

RECORD CROWD SEEN FOR RACES

SHELBY — A new attendance record is expected at the second annual Shelby soap box derby, July 27, S. F. Yosick, derby committee chairman, said today. Last year approximately 3,000 persons attended the event.

In connection with the derby, a 25-mile bicycle road race will be run. A special runway will be made on West Main street from Gamble street to Blackfork bridge for the derby.

VOLUNTEERS NOT HOLDING SALE

Westcott Says Organization Isn't Involved in Extract Drive.

The Volunteers of America are conducting no campaign, either house-to-house or by telephone to sell extracts, Capt. William Westcott made it clear today.

Westcott said he had been told that canvassers were working in Mansfield selling extract, representing that the sale was sponsored by the Volunteers.

He said he had learned in at least one case that the product sold by such a canvasser bore the name of a non-existent firm.

CHECK STEEL STRIKE 'SPIES'

Berger Manufacturing company, Canton subsidiary of Republic, said some of the money was paid to Kenneth J. Sodders of Cleveland and Edward C. Ray of Warren, O. He identified Ray as a former president of the Sheet Metal Workers Union of Canton, an AFL affiliate.

Chairman LaFollette (Prog-Wis) estimated for the record that Republic had paid Sodders and Ray about $2,500 for undercover activities during and after the six-day strike at the Berger plant in May, 1935. Sodders and Ray testified to receiving payments for the undercover work.

James L. Williams, superintendent of company police in all Republic plants, said he personally had paid "gratuities" to 200 or 300 persons for information on the activities of striking Berger plant workmen. Williams denied that any informers were employed regularly at Canton other than Sodders and Ray.

Evidence concerning espionage tapered off yesterday's testimony of shooting, clubbing and gassing near the Canton plant.

MARKET BOOMS AS PRICES HIT RECORD HIGHS

Stocks Up 1 to More Than 3 Points as Ticker's Swamped by Buying Wave.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market today soared 1 to more than 3 points to new highs for the year, as the high-speed ticker was swamped by a sustained wave of buying from the opening bell.

An accumulation of overnight buying orders brought one of the most active first hours since the rise began on June 20. Blocks of stock running to 8,000 shares changed hands, and the ticker was forced 6 minutes behind, necessitating use of the stock exchange's "flash" system of prices from the floor. The tape again ran 3 minutes late in the second hour.

Volume in the first hour amounted to 870,000 shares, or a full-day rate of better than 4,000,000 shares.

Cheerful business news, particularly on the steel industry, continued the chief bullish stimulant. Pittsburgh reported an additional increase in operations since the start of the week, following yesterday's estimate for a general steel industry rate at the best level since last November.

Building material demand was said to be increasing, with the price structure firm. Washington dispatches indicated a belief there of an earlier revival of the capital goods market.

CHANGES HOURS

Fendrick Eliminates Evening Program at Prospect.

A change in hours for supervised play at Prospect park was made today by Al Fendrick, city playground director.

The park will be open every day but Saturday and Sunday between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m., and 1 and 5 p. m., Fendrick said. Since the playground season opened four weeks ago the park had been one of four open daily between 1 and 5, and 6 and 8 p. m. No more evening hours will be held.

The change was made because of the interference of playground activities with kittenball games nealy every evening of the week Fendrick said.

If the new hours work out satisfactorily at Prospect, Fendrick plans to adopt them for the other ten playgrounds. At present supervised play is conducted at Liberty, Johns and North Lake parks between 1 and 5, and 6 and 8 p. m., and at the other eight grounds between 9 and 12 a. m., and 1 and 4 p. m.

COURT ADDS FINE

Driver Assessed $150, Costs After License's Revoked.

Six hours after Kenneth Krinkilton, R. D. 1, Mansfield, had his operator's permit revoked for one year by municipal court yesterday on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, he was fined $150 and costs.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, who had deferred sentence yesterday morning pending an estimate on the damages to the other car involved in an accident, suspended $50 of the fine on condition that Krinkilton pay $20 damages to D. A. Secrist, R. D. 2, Bellville, whose car he allegedly sideswiped on route 13, three miles south of Mansfield.

Krinkilton was released on a $5,000 appearance bond pending payment of the fine. He was arrested Saturday by state highway patrolmen after Secrist swore out the warrant on the driving charge.

ASK STREET IMPROVEMENT

City council had before it today a request from property owners on Alexander street seeking the improvement of the roadway from Ohio street to Albert avenue. In a petition on file with Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., eight property owners on the street ask council to pass the necessary legislation authorizing the grading and graveling of the roadway.

SCHOOLS ASK TAX ADVANCE

$201 Left in General Fund, Board Authorizes Clerk to Draw $26,700.

With the Mansfield schools' general fund reduced to $201, the board of education yesterday authorized Dr. J. H. Bristor, clerk, to draw $26,700 as an advance against the June collection of real estate and special assessment taxes.

The city schools, which already have borrowed $10,000 against the current tax collection, will receive $20,000 for their general fund and $6,700 for bond retirement in the advance, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

He estimated that the schools' total share of the second half taxes for operating expenses would be $130,000, but the remainder of it will not be available until the books close the third week in August. Regular distribution of the tax receipts will not be made until September.

Bristor said $18,000 of the $20,000 general fund advance would be needed to pay employes' salaries in two weeks.

The board authorized Bristor to ask for bids on the transportation of pupils to school next year. Transportation of handicapped children to city schools during the past year cost $3,473. Pupils are transported under a contract awarded to a taxicab company.

AND WHY NOT 'CORRIGAN DAY?'

Bold Airman's 'Mistake' Hop Stirs Up Enthusiasm of City's Sons of Erin.

what he thinks of a Corrigan, and I'm telling you that it took brains and courage, with a bit of wild Irish audacity. I think he set his plane just where he had headed for—but more power to him if he can get away with his story of a "mistake."

T. J. Clary, Yuncker Brothers—God is good to the Irish and none knew it better than young Corrigan when he set out for Dublin. He's a credit to the Irish.

Atty. Francis O'Brien, Richland Trust building—It was a typical Irish stunt—impetuous, impulsive, but canny enough to have his own way. Only an Irishman would have thought of getting around the refusal of authorities to permit him to make the trip in just that manner.

Patrick H. Downs, 114 West First street—No one but an Irishman would have accepted such odds. It was a great flight, combining daredevilry and courage—and when a "bigger and better" flight is made, you can bet it'll be an Irishman making it.

Atty. John C. O'Donnell, Walpark building—Corrigan is a smart flier, level-headed and dependable, and I think he knew exactly what he was doing when he nosed his little plane out over the Atlantic.

M. E. Lambert, Westinghouse—I'll bet that wild Irishman laughed all the way over at the little joke he was pulling on the authorities who had refused him permission to make the flight last year. But whether it was impulsive or not, it was a great stunt.

Atty. Thomas McDermott, Walpark building—The story of Corrigan's flight is the most amazing and interesting piece of news in years; it's caught the imagination of the world. But that Irishman isn't fooling anyone with his story of flying the Atlantic by mistake.

Richard E. Kelley, Westinghouse—It was a typical Irish stunt—no one but an Irishman would have thought of it. And I think he's smart enough to capitalize on it, now that he's done it.

Patrick Cusic, 169 Westwood avenue—Irish or no Irish, I think it was a nutty stunt. The odds against him were as great as a ticket on the Irish sweepstakes, and it was just the luck of the Irish that he's alive today.

P. S. Carroll, clerk of county commissioners—"It was a remarkable feat, but the angels must have been flirting with him all the way. An Irishman always heads for Ireland; that green little isle attracts them all."

Nellie M. Carr, deputy county auditor—"It was a grand feat. But I think Corrigan knew what he was doing when he headed for Ireland. Maybe it's the smell of the soil that instinctively brings them back."

90 NAMED TO LEAD 'SALES, JOBS' DRIVE

Committee to Launch Campaign Tomorrow at Meeting at Legion Home.

HEAR ORIGINATOR OF IDEA

Detroit Man Who Helped Draft Plan to Lick Depression Will Be Speaker.

A committee of 90 men was named today to set in motion Mansfield's "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign which has been designed to help lick the depression.

The drive will be actually launched at 8 p. m. tomorrow when this group meets at the American Legion assembly room with one of the men who originated the idea.

Talk Open to Public.

Ralph Cameron, Detroit, who was one of the small group who worked out plans for the crusade which later was put into effect in Lincoln, Neb., will be the speaker. Although primarily for employers in business and industry, the talk is open to the public and to sales people in all lines of work.

Under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants association, Mansfield business and industrial concerns will mobilize this week for the campaign that is intended to rout the "psychological depression" that is an important factor in the actual depression.

Calls on Entire City to Aid.

Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said the entire city is expected to take part in the "Sales Mean Jobs" drive which officially opens Aug. 1.

"Every person in the city can help if they will stop talking about the depression," Williams said. "Employers and sales people are going to take another hitch in their belts, roll up their sleeves, put on a smile—and go to work to lick this thing called 'depression'."

Simpson, H G Kate Museum

'I Won't Fire an Employe for Telling Truth, Beg Dimes or Be Cry Baby,' He Says.

REFERS TO DAVEY ACTS

Hits Highway Department, Would Name Non-Partisan Board to Pick Director.

Asserting that state employes have virtually become vassals under the Davey administration, owing allegiance to the governor rather than to the public, Charles Sawyer, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, renewed his charges last night in Central park that Gov. Davey has taken the state government away from the people.

Approximately 1,500 persons heard Sawyer as he enumerated a series of acts of Davey which he said "I won't do if I am elected governor."

Calls Him 'My Opponent.'

Sawyer never mentioned Davey by name but referred to him repeatedly as "my opponent."

Describing the state highway department as "the most disgraceful thing in Ohio history," Sawyer promised reorganization of that department, with the appointment of a non-partisan highway commission which would name a chief engineer to head the highway activities.

"I won't fire a highway employe for telling the truth, either," he declared, referring to the Sparks case last winter, in which a state highway official's job was abolished after he testified before the senate investigating committee of alleged excessive payments by the highway department for "hot mix" paving material.

Cites More 'I Won'ts.'

"I won't beg dimes and nickels to buy a rug for my office; I won't abuse the pardon power; I won't play on the heartstrings of the old age pensioners, and I won't crybaby around about being the victim of a newspaper conspiracy," Sawyer said.

"I would expect the newspapers to criticize me as governor, but I would heed their criticism and change my methods if I thought the papers were right and I was wrong," he declared.

Sawyer charged that state employes had been scared into contributing to the Davey campaign fund and that so many demands had been placed on them that they had little money left from their salaries after meeting all their obligations to the governor.

Sawyer called for harmony in the state Democratic ranks and

Scenes in Attempted Ohio Pen Break

Shown above are two Ohio penitentiary convicts, Charles Menges, upper left, and Clyde Staup, lower right, and a collection of bombs and weapons found in their cells which led to an investigation today of a plot for a mass prison escape. The two inmates stabbed a guard with a butcher knife and Staup was wounded by gunfire when other guards frustrated the escape attempt. Probes Mass Escape Plot At Ohio Pen

Woodard Says Convicts Who Stabbed Guard Had Six Bombs.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A sweeping investigation of a plot in which an unknown number of convicts planned to bomb their way to freedom from Ohio penitentiary was under way today.

Warden James C. Woodard said six black powder bombs were taken from Clyde Staup, 28, of Allen county, and Charles Menges 28, of Hamilton county, after the men failed in a desperate attempt to break from the prison yesterday.

Shortly afterward four more bombs were found cached in the ventilator of a cell block. Others are being sought.

Woodard said he did not know how many men were involved in the plot, but that "it is certain" Staup and Menges did not make the bombs because they were confined to a section of the penitentiary where materials from which the bombs were fashioned could not be obtained.

Staup was wounded seriously in the groin and Raymond T. Thornton, a guard, was stabbed in the chest during the escape attempt. Staup was expected to recover, while doctors said Thorunton had an "even chance." Menges was held in solitary confinement.

Armed With Knives.

The two convicts were armed with crudely-fashioned knives, with which they cowed three prison authorities, a secretly-made gun loaded with powder and bearings, and their bombs. Woodard said he did not know why the men failed to use their explosives.

Both threatened to explode the bombs as they marched Guard Sherman A. Riley across the prison enclosure. They pushed lighted cigars close to fuses and warned him to make no outcry.

After seizing Riley, the two accosted Guard Fred C. Kaestner, then released both and forced Assistant Deputy Warden William J. Walker to walk with them to the gate of the bull pen. There Guard Elmer Callahan, notified of the disturbance, opened fire. Thornton rushed up but was stabbed as he grappled with the pair.

"I don't know what all is behind it," Woodard said, "but its certain Staup and Menges didn't make their own bombs. But I think the Group Controls 65 Per Cent of Industry, Attorney General Charges.

CLAIMS STARS POOLED

Petition Says Company-Owned Theaters Given Preference on Release Dates.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Cummings charged eight major film companies today with virtually monopolizing the motion picture industry.

He filed civil suit in federal district court in New York asking that the firms be required to divest themselves either of their ownership of theaters or of production and distribution facilities.

The case, among the most comprehensive brought in recent years under the anti-trust laws, was presented after a long investigation by the justice department.

Hold 65 Per Cent Control.

The government's bill of complaint charged the eight companies, 25 subsidiary or affiliated corporations and 132 individuals with controlling about 65 per cent of the nation's moving pictures "from selection of the story to final showing at the theater."

A statement issued at the justice department named as principal defendants:

Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Loew's, Inc.; the Irving Trust company, N. Y., as trustee in bankruptcy for Radio-Keith Orpheum corporation; Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.; Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation; Columbia Pictures corporation; Universal corporation and United Artists corporation.

"Restoration of free enterprise and open competition amongst all branches of the motion picture industry is the primary objective of this proceeding," said the statement.

In general, Cummings charged the producers with:

Avoiding competition with each other by "virtual division of territory."

Pooling stars and feature players.

Exchanging directors, technicians and equipment.

Giving preference to company-affiliated theaters in arranging release dates.

Hits 'Block Booking.'

Requiring independent theaters to accept all pictures furnished them, a practice known as "block booking"; to sign inflexible contracts and to accept unfavorable showing dates.

Cummings' announcement said he was following a rather new policy in making public details of the petition, in order to guide business men who seek information on the department's probable views and action in other cases.

BUMPER WHEAT CROP REPORTED

County Yield Up 20 to 25 Per Cent But Farmers Getting Only Half 1937 Price.

A better-than-average wheat crop was pouring into Richland county elevators today, but farmers were collecting only 63 cents per bushel for their grain, little more than half the $1.16 they were paid at the beginning of the threshing season last year.

Despite the pessimistic predictions of a number of county farmers, Mansfield grain dealers said fields are yielding from 20 to 25 per cent better than last year and the grain is of far better quality.

The increased yield was not expected to off-set the price slash which was attributed to a huge hold-over from 1937 and a bumper crop this year in the western wheat-producing states.

The heaviest yield in the county, and one of the best reported in recent years, was 47 bushels per acre from a 20-acre field on the Raemelton farms, southwest of the city.

Most of the county farms were producing an average of 18 to 20 bushels per acre, millers said. Frost damage to early planted fields, however, reduced the production in some sections.

"The grain is many times better in quality than last year, and will make much better flour," J. O. Hanley of the Hanley Milling company, said.

"While most farmers got only No. 3 grade prices for their wheat last year, they are getting the No. 1 price this season," he pointed out.

About half of the county's wheat crop is being harvested and threshed with combines this year, but the combine-threshed wheat is showing more moisture content than that threshed from the shock, a report from the Lantz Mills said.

County Agent George B. Ganyard predicted most of the threshing would be completed by Aug. 1 if the weather is favorable. A number of farmers, however, were said to be storing their wheat in their barns to hold it for a better price. Stored grain will be threshed late in the summer.

Berg was the second legislator active in taxicab law making to be drawn into the Dewey inquiry. Three weeks ago Assemblyman Edward S. Moran, jr., of Brooklyn, was indicted on charges of accepting bribes in connection with taxicabs legislation.

Joan and Franchot Come To Parting of the Ways

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Joan Crawford, the one-time chorus girl who became one of Hollywood's suavest first ladies, ended still another "ideal" marriage today by announcing her separation from Franchot Tone, her second husband.

Miss Crawford, who once said she believed all actresses should remain spinsters, wouldn't answer the telephone at her Brentwood Hills mansion. Tone, son of a wealthy manufacturer, a Cornell graduate, and society man turned actor, moved to an undisclosed hotel.

Best for Happiness.

The only word from them was contained in this formal statement issued by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the studio where they both are under contract:

"We regret this action, but we believe it is the best way out for our future happiness."

For weeks there had been rumors that all was not well with the Tones. Both denied such rumors.

Tone's movie contract ends in November. He is expected to go to New York to appear on the stage, after which divorce proceedings probably will be started. Miss Crawford will remain in Hollywood at least five more years under a new contract which will net her $1,500,000.

She married Douglas Fairbanks, jr., in New York in 1929. They obtained a divorce in 1933. Two years later she married Tone.

CALLS COUNCIL

Mayor Sets Session for Friday to Act on New Fire Station.

The question of when Mansfield is going to get a new No. 2 fire station will be presented to city council at a special session called for Friday night, Mayor Claude M. Hunter said today.

Council will be asked to give Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert authority to enter into a contract for the construction of a new station to replace the present structure on North Main street. Plans have already been drafted and call for a one-story brick building to cost less than $8,000.

Besides considering the numerous pieces of minor legislation and petitions on file, council also is expected to receive a report from a special committee which has under advisement a petition from the Richland County Permit Holders' association seeking to extend the night club "curfew" ordinance.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said he hoped to get the group together tonight to draft a recommendation.

CHECK STEEL STRIKE 'SPIES'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senate investigators traced today what they said was a system of labor espionage established by the Republic Steel corporation to combat strikes.

Witnesses were summoned in an effort to show that methods used in a relatively small labor disturbance in 1935 were continued on a broader scale in the "little steel" strike last year.

From Joseph F. Gilroy, a company captain of police, the civil liberties committee heard yesterday that Republic paid $4,130 for "expenses in connection with labor disturbances" in Canton, Ohio, from June to September, 1935.

HEAT TO BREAK

Showers Due as Mercury Climbs to 86 at Noon.

Scattered thunder showers were expected late this afternoon or tonight to drive the mercury down a bit from the mark of 86 it had reached at noon today. High humidity made it seem even hotter than that, and there were indications that a reading topping yesterday's high of 87 might be recorded before the predicted showers arrived.

The forecast for Ohio indicated that most of the state would be visited with showers either this afternoon, this evening or early tomorrow. The showers were expected to be brief however, and the forecast said the weather would be "generally fair."

Earthquake Kills 20, Spreads Ruin in Ancient Greece

ATHENS —(AP)— The strongest earthquake felt in this country in modern times scattered death and ruin today through ancient Greece.

A tentative casualty list based on fragmentary reports from the stricken areas showed 20 persons killed and at least 100 injured.

The Island of Euboea, north of Athens, suffered most heavily. The quake centered there and in at least two villages nearly every house was shaken down. Reports said the shocks caused fissures into which small buildings toppled.

The government hurried relief by motor truck and railway to the stricken communities. Officials said it was impossible to estimate the material damage.

A succession of minor tremors kept the population in fear of further serious shocks.

Purchased 3 Years Ago, They'll Be Refinished Without Cost.

If you think you have experienced difficulty trying to find a street in the city because of the illegibility of street signs—just wait and see what's going to happen in the next 30 days.

Because Mansfield is going to be minus about 500 of the signs—they are going back to the factory to be refinished and lettered.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said today that the Lyle Signs Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., from whom the signs were purchased in 1935, have agreed to boil off the enamel and reletter the markers.

The Minneapolis firm, which received $2,500 for 500 signs three years ago, has been trying to sell the city more signs in the last few weeks. After Styert pointed out that before any new business would be considered the company would have to make good on the old order, the concern agreed to refinish the markers without cost to the city.

The only cost to the city will be in removing them and the freight to and from the factory.

The street markers were purchased during the last year of the administration of former Mayor Charles M. Lantz.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce which was behind the move to obtain the markers three years ago, said the signs were to have been guaranteed for five years.

Styert said city street employes within the next few days would start the removal of the signs.

TELLS AMERICA HOW TO SOLVE LABOR PROBLEM

Sweden's No. 1 Industrialist Says 'Mutual Distrust' Must Be Overcome First.

(Editor's Note: Here is the second of Webb Miller's series on relations between capital and labor in Sweden and Great Britain which are under investigation by a presidential commission from the United States.)

By WEBB MILLER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

HARINGE, Sweden — Capital and labor in the United States must overcome a "mutual distrust" before they can find the industrial peace that Sweden's famous "middle way" has achieved, Axel Wenner-Gren, Sweden's foremost industrialist, said today.

At his mansion Wenner-Gren explained why this nation has been able to adjust its labor troubles with a minimum of disputes and almost no violence. In discussing his own country, he commented freely on conditions in the United States.

Although not closely identified with the manufacture of automobiles, Wenner-Gren might be called "the Henry Ford of Sweden." He is the founder of Electrolux corporation; a majority shareholder in companies owning steel interests, newspapers, and 5,000,000 acres of timber land. His interests are world wide and he has just returned from an eight-month trip around the world, studying economic and social conditions. Wenner-Gren knows labor's side as well as capital's, for when he set out to make his fortune 30 years ago he took a job at manual labor in a New Jersey factory at 15 cents an hour.

He had this to say about the United States:

"It seems to some of us here that America's troubles are due largely to the mutual distrust among capital, labor, and government. American capital has fought attempts to remedy American backwardness in social and economic reforms. Likewise, the labor leadership refuses to view relations with capital from a realistic viewpoint while Washington is trying quasi-revolutionary methods which older democracies, like Sweden, learned can be accomplished in the long run only by orderly political evolution."

Then Wenner-Gren turned to his own country to which President Roosevelt is sending a commission to study capital-labor relationship.

"Swedish industry," he said, "accepts the unionization of workers as their inalienable right and even co-operates to help achieve it sometimes. Industry, on the other hand, is encouraged to organize on a nation-wide basis just like labor. This has resulted in two united fronts and an approximate balance of power which has brought wholesome mutual respect."

"Capital here prefers to deal with strong and responsible unions somewhat in the same way that it prefers to deal with strong and responsible businesses. Furthermore, under Swedish law, a labor union is just as responsible for the performance of its contracts as any corporation and can be sued for damages for breach of contract."

"Here in Sweden that unwarranted fear of unionization, which is found in some other countries, is practically non-existent. Likewise, there is not much fear on the part of labor that capital may unduly prosper. In general, labor representatives here temper their demands for wages and working conditions upon what experience and education has shown that industry in question can bear. Generally, labor does not object to good profits for capital but really hopes employers prosper because laborers know by experience that only capital's ability to make and increase profits will permit them ultimately to obtain higher wages.

"Our laws affecting the relationship of capital and labor are bilateral and when collective agreements are reached the issue is settled for the entire country in that particular branch of industry and settled for good for the length of the agreement. This makes for confidence and mutual respect.

Government Ready.

"If, despite this condition, a dispute reaches an impasse, the government, which is respected by both sides, is ready to advise, conciliate or arbitrate. Although at present we have a social democratic government (supported by the trade unions) employers know the judgments of the labor court will be impartial. But the vast majority of the disputes are settled by mutual negotiation without recourse to law."

"In our great general strike of 1909 which terminated disastrously for labor, each side learned its lesson and that has had its bearing on the relationship since. Both learned they could get along better by co-operation than by nation-wide conflict."

Wenner-Gren has created a philanthropic foundation for scientific research into social, political and economic conditions. One purpose of the foundation is to create a better understanding between capital and labor.

GALION SEEKS PWA APPROVAL

Council Revises Costs for Sewage Project; Figure Set at $100,000.

GALION—City council at its meeting Tuesday night passed a resolution to request approval from the Federal Public Works administration of the revised estimated cost of the sewage treatment plant project now being completed for the city of Galion.

The total project is estimated at $100,905. Some of the items such as legal, administrative and overhead, have been decreased since the first estimation, and it is found that there can now be a greater amount placed on interest during the construction period.

Council President G. M. Badgley, appointed a committee to make a survey of traffic at various street intersections of Galion at busy times during the day. This action was taken after Service and Safety Director Jay F. Nichols suggested the possible need of traffic lights at some of these intersections.

Council authorized the auditor of the city to pay the expenses of the city solicitor, George Davies, for a trip made to Columbus on July 15, 1938, for the city.

Permission was granted George S. Wilkes to erect a sign over the sidewalk in front of his second-hand store on South Market street.

Mayor W. M. King's report for June showed collections as follows: Fines $45; costs $30.15, and forfeitures, $10, making a total of $85.15.

Councilman F. E. Cook was excused. Cook is improving in a Columbus hospital where he recently underwent an operation.

Fibbed About Age, Escapes Fine But Loses His License

Lawrence Chronister, 16, of R. D. 1, Lucas, escaped a $10 fine in municipal court yesterday when it was learned he was 16, and not 19 years old, but he lost his driving permit when his case was taken to county juvenile court.

Chronister, who was arrested by Corporal Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol on a charge of failing to register a motor vehicle, was fined $10 when he pleaded guilty in municipal court. He admitted driving a car without license plates.

When police took him to the county jail, however, to serve out the fine, deputy sheriffs recognized him and refused to accept him because he was a minor.

The court action was rescinded and the youth was turned over to Probate Judge C. J. Anderson who revoked his driver's license. Chronister said he had represented himself as 19 when he obtained the permit.

YOU KNOW NOW WHEN YOU RIDE ON HOT MIX—SIGNS TELL YOU

New black and white highway signs intended to win favor for hotmix today apparently were just another part of Gov. Martin L. Davey's political campaign.

Signs bearing the words "Start—T-135—Hot mix," and "End—T-135—Hot mix," have been erected at various points through out Ohio where Hot-mix has been used to surface the highway.

Just in case you haven't seen any of the new signs— there are a few marking the 20 miles of hot mix pavement in Richland county. The shiny markers have been erected on U. S. route 30 S. west of Mansfield, on state route 13, north of the city and on U. S. route 42 both north and south of Mansfield.

While it was believed that Davey had ordered the signs erected to counteract Hot mix charges that have been hurled against him, state highway officials here said the new signs had been set up by the division office in order to show the motorist just what type of paving it was and gave the motorists a chance to compare it with other types of paving.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

ALONG THE HIGHWAY

ALONG the improved highways I have seen high banks, deep cut when the road was made, growing green with honeysuckle vines, whose flowers yield a fine, delicate fragrance to the traveler. What would have been an unsightly, gullied bank of exposed earth has become a garden of soft green and creamy beauty.

On other banks, alsike and sweet clover grow, mixed with a permanent crop of blue grass. These clovers always grow where newly excavated soils have not been soured by decaying vegetation or where necessary minerals have not been leached out into the air.

I saw plantings of fast-growing locust, and long rows of splendid American elms, at regular intervals along the highway, their topmost branches stretching toward the telegraph wires.

At a bubbling fountain of spring water, I stopped my car for I was tired, hot and thirsty. As I drank a farmer came to refresh his weary, sweaty team with the overflow that poured into a stout, plank trough.

"A fine roadside spring," I said.

"Yes, that's so, but I tell you it cost us taxpayers plenty . . . and what good does flowers and trees and fountains do us anyway? I ain't got no time to go ridin'."

I watched him take his horses to the barn. A troupe of travelers paused at the fountain and filled their jugs and thermos bottles. Among them was an old, old lady, with a crutch.

"Are you having a pleasant trip?" I asked her.

"Oh yes, indeed! When I was a girl the country was so different. Nobody then could ever imagine rolling along over road like this, with camping spots and springs and wells and scenery unfolding as you went. I'm glad I lived to see it."

I wish the farmer might have seen her face . . . but no matter. He looks every day upon lovely things . . . and never sees them.

KING'S SPEECH ON FRIENDSHIP BUOYS FRANCE

Anglo-French Entente Still Retains "All of Vitality," George Tells Europe.

(By International News Service)

PARIS—In straightforward terms, in what was probably the most important international utterance he has ever made, King George VI of Great Britain today told a disturbed Europe that the Anglo-French entente "has lost nothing of its vitality."

The king's statement was made to a vast throng headed by President Albert Lebrun at the Paris city hall.

At the same time, emphasis was added to the world significance of the British royal visit with the formal announcement that statesmen of France and Britain met at luncheon today and discussed the question of the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Discuss Problem.

Premier Edouard Daladier of France and Foreign Ministers Lord Halifax and Georges Bonnet of Britain and France were at the conference table, talking over the problem which is of the greatest concern to Europe at this time. Lord Halifax was able to present an indirect message from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, transmitted in London through his aide de camp, Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, in which the German dictator asked for a "non-violent solution" of the Sudeten problem.

After a ceremony at the Arc de Triomphe, where he laid a wreath on the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier, King George and Queen Elizabeth proceeded through jammed streets to the River Seine, where they went by launch to the city hall.

Another immense throng greeted them at the "hotel de Ville," and heard King George pronounce Anglo-French amity in no uncertain terms, accompanied by an indirect reference to their former common enmity for Germany.

At the door of the old red city hall, King George said:

"It is with real emotion that I cross the threshold which for me evokes many memories out of our common past.

"My grandfather (Edward VII) came here in 1903 and established, in a way, the basis for the entente between France and Great Britain.

"My father (George V) came here in April of 1914 to consecrate this entente, which soon afterwards received its baptism of fire.

"Today I have come in my turn, and I must state that this entente has lost nothing of its force and vitality."

Speaking in French, the king asked his hosts to "interpret for the city of Paris how much the queen and I feel its welcome."

Ballard pleaded guilty to the charge.

An indictment against Lyle L. Hebrew, 24, on the same charge, was nolled upon request of Prosecutor Leo J. Scanlon, who investigated and learned that Hebrew was not connected with the crime.

RITES SET FOR MISS BRUBAKER

Death Claims Ashland Woman After Short Illness; Funeral to Be Held Thursday.

ASHLAND— Funeral services for Miss Alice Brubaker, 64, of West Main street, who died Monday afternoon at Samaritan hospital, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Shaw funeral home. Rev. H. E. Andrews, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be made in Ashland cemetery. She was taken to the hospital Sunday evening and had been ill only a short time.

With the exception of two years in Oregon and four years in California, she had resided in Ashland all her life. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church, had been president of the Westminster Bible class of the church and was an active member of Division Six of the Ladies' Aid society.

She is survived by her brother, J. B. Brubaker of Waterloo, Ia., and half brother, Guy Brubaker. A brother, Walter Brubaker of Polk, died five years ago.

TRUCKING FIRM SUES FOR $548

Pittsburgh Company Files Action Here, Says Contract Broken.

Action to collect $548 in a breach of contract suit was filed in municipal court today by the M. and H. Transportation company, Pittsburgh, against the Ray Miller Trucking company, Terre Haute, Ind.

In its petition, the Pittsburgh company states that last October it entered into a contract with the defendant to pay half of the expense of maintaining a terminal at 202 North Diamond street.

The petition adds that expenses of terminal which were discontinued July 1, amounted to $748 as the Indiana company's share. It charges that only $200 has been paid on the amount and that the defendant is still indebted for $548.

GROCERY FIRM ROBBED OF $400 IN CIGARETS

Thieves Pry Boards From Rear Door and Take 300 Cartons While Watchman's Away.

Police today were investigating the burglary of the American Grocery company, 208 North Walnut street, in which 300 cartons of cigarets valued at $400 were hauled away.

It was the second cigaret theft at the wholesale house in the past year. Last July thieves broke into the establishment and hauled off $900 in cigarets.

Clues Lacking.

Police said they had no clues although they believed the same persons "pulled" the two jobs.

The burglary was reported at 8:45 p. m. by Hugh Fokner, night watchman at the warehouse. He told the officers he had left the building at 7:45 and when he returned found a rear door standing open.

Police believe the thieves apparently had waited until Fokner left before making their entrance. They said boards had been pried from a rear door which had been boarded over after entrance had been gained to the building last summer.

TAX PAYMENTS LAG THIS YEAR

Treasurer Says Collection 40 Per Cent Behind 1937 Figure for Same Date.

Richland county property owners are lagging about 40 per cent behind last year in payment of second-half real estate taxes, County Treasurer John E. Kolb's figures showed today.

Collections of real estate and special assessment levies since tax books opened July 5 total approximately $88,000, while during the same period of 1937 the collections amounted to more than $130,000.

While Kolb said receipts "are coming in steadily," the prospects were that business conditions would result in a marked reduction in tax collections in the current tax period.

The tax bill for thins half, including delinquent levies and penalties, is more than $800,000, but the treasurer said he would consider a $625,000 collection "satisfactory."

Tax books will close Aug. 20. After that date a penalty will be added to all payments.

ROCKS CRUSH 10 TRAPPED BY TUNNEL BLAST

Baltimore Dynamite Explosion Traps 18 Workmen; Charge Set Off Accidentally.

(By Associated Press)

BALTIMORE—A premature explosion of 450 pounds of dynamite killed 10 members of a crew of 18 workmen blasting a water tunnel through solid rock two hundred feet below the surface near the city pumping station today.

Seven men were killed outright as the burst of rock rolled through the tunnel. Three of the 11 brought to the surface alive died in hospitals. Only four escaped injury.

Accident Blamed.

Officials of the construction company said the blast which occurred about 7 o'clock must have been set off by accident while the men were tamping down the huge charge of explosive.

It was the task of the mining crew, working from midnight to 8 a. m., to blast away the rock for the day crew to remove. Disaster came when the final charge of the night exploded prematurely. None of the injured men was able to explain what had happened.

Several of the bodies were mangled so that identification was difficult.

Construction of the seven-mile water tunnel between the Lake Montebello filtration plant and the Gunpowder river was begun in 1937 by the J. F. Shea company of Los Angeles, to provide an additional subterranean viaduct to supplement the Baltimore city water supply.

Work was carried on simultaneously from several vertical shafts but only one section was affected by the blast.

A three-year time limit was placed on the $5,300,000 PWA project, employing some 500 workmen.

BUYS FARM AT AUCTION

The Federal Land Bank of Louisville, holder of a mortgage on 55 acres of land in Monroe township, purchased the property for $2,430 at a recent sheriff's sale at the courthouse. The land bank's mortgage amounted to $2,337, and the farm was appraised at $2,400. Owners of the property who were named defendants in the foreclosure action, were D. D. Peterson and others.

Judge C. U. Ahl, court chairman, will preside at the court of honor and he will be assisted by Judge Russell Kear of Wyandot county.

SUE OVER LEASE

Shelby Men Seek to Cancel Contract, Regain Theater.

Seeking to cancel a lease on the Opera House at Shelby and to regain possession of the building, H. B. Brickley and D. W. Brickley had filed a suit in common pleas court today against the Lion Theater corporation which operates a theater in the Opera house.

The plaintiffs contend that the defendant firm is back $225 in rent payments, covering a three-month period, and refuses to give the owners possession of the building.

The Opera house was leased in January, 1935, for six years on the condition that the lease should be terminated when rental payments were more than 30 days in arrears, the petition states.

Represented by Attys. Will and Lutz, the Brickleys ask the court for a judgment for possession of the building.

CRASHES KILL 5

Army Fliers, 'Joy Riders' Die as Planes Plunge.

(By Associated Press)

Airplane crashes over the nation today claimed five lives, three of them "joy riders" and two army fliers.

At Ft. Plain, N. Y., two women and a man were killed when the biplane in which they had gone for an early morning ride, crashed in a field at 3 a. m. The victims were Everett Sanders, 34; Mrs. Theresa Henderschott and Mrs. Allen Shelley.

Two United States Army fliers, their identity as yet unknown, were killed near Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., when the plane in which they were flying, crashed on a farm. A witness said the plane had been flying very low, not more than 50 to 100 feet off the ground when it suddenly dived for the ground.

STATE URGING NEW ASHLAND SEWAGE PLANT

Engineer's Plan for System Given Approval by Ohio Health Department.

ASHLAND—In a report made by the state department of health, an entirely new sewage disposal plant for Ashland is recommended.

Plan C of recommendations of E. D. Barstow, consulting sanitary engineer for the city, was approved by the department's division of sanitary engineering.

Plan C provides that the present works be abandoned and that a new treatment plant be constructed on a new site, bringing the sewage from now unsewered areas by gravity.

Plan A called for the use of existing sewage treatment works with changes in present structures and addition of activation while Plan B provided for use of existing plant with modification and construction of secondary treatment devices at a new site.

Plan C provides a method of sewage and sewage disposal which should be most economical to the city in view of annual expenditure.

An estimated cost of operation of this plan would be $11,212.50 in comparison to $14,000 for Plan A; using chemicals in Plan B, $13,875, without chemicals in Plan B, $12,282.50.

more co-operation between the state and national administrations.

"I am sure," he said, "that state employes are human beings just like the rest of us and resent having to contribute from their salaries to a campaign fund to help one Democrat fight another."

He said he had learned before last night's meeting that state employes in Richland county had been told not to attend the rally.

"What have we come to, anyway, when a superior can tell public employes they can't come to hear me speak?" he asked. "There never has been such a state of mind as there is in Ohio tonight," he added.

Attacks Pardoning of Banker.

He attacked Davey for pardoning a former Cleveland bank president on the pretense that the banker was in "imminent danger of death" while prisoners without influence were left to die in the penitentiary.

While he did not name the banker, he apparently referred to Kenyon V. Painter, former head of the Union Trust company, who was pardoned by Davey last year.

Criticizing the handling of the department of aid for the aged, Sawyer said, "I won't raise old age pensions $10 a month before election and cut them $12 after election."

Without referring to any particular labor group, he said, "I am happy to have the support of organized labor, and I would treat all groups alike."

Answering Davey who had termed him a "silk stocking candidate," Sawyer asserted that "I wore no silk stockings in 1917."

He was in the army two years during the World war and served eight months overseas.

Democrats from Richland and neighboring counties came here for the rally, which was arranged by the Sawyer-for-governor committee in the county.

Sawyer met scores of Democrats from Richland and surrounding counties yesterday afternoon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, where a reception was arranged by G. A. Baer, chairman of the county Sawyer committee.

Meets Davey Leader.

One of Sawyer's visitors at the hotel was E. B. Kallmerten, county Democratic chairman and staunch Davey supporter, who pledged his support to Sawyer if he is nominated Aug. 9.

"I just wanted to tell you that I'll be with you 100 per cent if you are nominated," Kallmerten said, shaking hands with Sawyer.

Sawyer replied: "Then on Aug. 10 you'll be with me 100 per cent—but the support I appreciate most is the kind I get before Aug. 9."

Sawyer was introduced last night by Atty John C. O'Donnell, a member of the county Sawyer-for-Governor committee. The Cincinnatian, who came to Mansfield from Wooster, left today to speak in Newark and Lancaster.

Bucyrus Honors Fire Chief Who Served 50 Years

BUCYRUS—Tribute was paid to William Mader, chief of Bucyrus fire department for 50 years, who was guest of honor at a dinner at the Elks club Tuesday night which was attended by city officials and city officials from adjoining towns.

The guest of honor was presented with a wrist watch, the presentation being made by Safety Director W. G. Beebe.

Speakers included W. A. Blicke, president of the Bucyrus City bank and close friend of the guest of honor, and former city officials. Also called upon for remarks were Fire Chief McFarland, chief of the Marion fire department for 35 years; Harry Kyle, Galion fire chief, and Frank S. Monnett, former attorney general and close friend of Mr. Mader.

In responding Chief Mader gave a brief resume of his 50 years in office. His records show a total of 1,700 fire alarms answered during his years as chief, with a loss of $566,000, of which $453,000 was covered by insurance. Per capita fire loss during the 50 years was 62 cents.

trouble's broken up. It's quiet now."

The origin of the bombs was the order of the day. Two were made from gas pipe and the others from heavy cardboard and gummed paper.

"They couldn't blow the wall with them," the warden said of the bombs, "but they could kill a lot of men if they touched it off at the right spot."

The warden said he could not determine immediately where the powder was obtained. He said it was being analyzed. It will take several days' investigation to reach a conclusion, he added.

Staup, serving 10 to 25 years for a Lima robbery, and Menges, slayer of a Hamilton county deputy sheriff, participated with three other convicts in a futile escape attempt Dec. 7, 1936.

Defiant despite his wounds, Staup asserted late yesterday that he would attempt another break if possible. "If I ever get out again, I'll have to," the convict told a reporter.

LOVE IN DANGER

By KATHRYN BEMIS

CHAPTER IX

"You saw—actually saw Stella drop the pearls into Frank's pocket?" came from Ray, in tortured dismay. "What did he say to her?"

"I was too far away to hear what they said," Clinton Hoover went on quickly, "but Frank seemed to be talking seriously to Stella when they came up the companionway. Then she did that fool thing!"

"They must be crazy!" exploded Hal. "I didn't know Stella had found her necklace—she lost it at her party. Now—for her to hand it over to Armstrong—it's sheer lunacy!"

"Of course, she lost it—but it was—it was returned to her," put in Ray, then came to an awkward pause. She mustn't get too involved in explanations, she though apprehensively.

She clenched her cold hands, tried frantically to still the wild beating of her heart. She blurted out, "I'm going to find Stella—tell her what I think of her!"

She rushed away before either of the men could detain her. She ran blindly along the shadowy deck, heedless of everything but her general direction. To think that Stella would take such dangerous chances after all that had happened in Mumford! She must tell her that—

* * *

Ray's lowered head suddenly bumped against a rough tweed coat; two strong hands held her fast. She looked up into the grinning face of Frank Armstrong.

"Where to in such a hurry, my beautiful lady? Don't you know this is a night made for loitering, for communing with one's soul—with another soul on one's own plane of longing?"

Her chest rose and fell in agitation. "Let me—let me go!" she panted. "I've just heard—oh, I must see Stella!"

"Stella? You could find her down in the ladies' cabin. She ripped her skirt on a nail—and the pesky yarn began to unravel. There's nothing you can do about it, I'm afraid. I need your assistance now far more than she does."

"You—need me?" she gasped, trying to feel incensed at this extraordinary man and not quite succeeding.

"Yes. I want you to—"

"Keep Stella's pearls again? No, thank you! I hardly care to be implicated. I took too great a risk last time."

He gave a quick, furtive glance around, then linked an arm through hers and walked her swiftly to the other side of the boat where there would be less chance of interruption from the party crowd now beginning to saunter about the decks. He put her into a deck chair, sat down in the one beside her. He leaned toward her and inquired tersely, "Why do you think I have Stella's pearls?"

She drummed her twitching fingers on the arm of her chair avoiding his eyes.

"Oh, I'm clairvoyant," she said, trying for airy indifference. "The pearls are in your coat pocket."

He straightened. "Good heavens!" he ejaculated. "I believe you do have a sixth sense!"

"What's the plan now?" Her tone was brittle with sarcasm.

He sighed deeply. "I shall probably take greater chances—and trust to luck."

She melted somewhat. "You mean—you're in danger?" she asked.

"To—some degree."

"You could return the necklace to Stella—tell her you don't care to be involved in—in a possible murder," she suggested quickly.

"That would make me either a coward—or a fool. Take your choice."

"I—see," came from her faintly. "Pearls have a fairly decent market value now, haven't they?"

"Yes—fairly," he conceded.

She wilted perceptibly. The noise of the chugging engine below decks pounded a fateful phrase over and over against her troubled consciousness. "In love with a thief—in love with a thief!" it seemed to say. She felt strangled, stifled; she could not have voiced words if she had found words to use.

* * *

The lazy breeze blew curls across her eyes. She raised a hand to her hatless head and tucked in the wayward strands, now platinum in the moonlight. He caught her hand and held it fast.

Then he asked in a matter of fact way, "How did you discover—what made you suspect I had the pearls?"

"Clinton Hoover saw Stella drop them into your pocket," she said, thinking the truth might force some sort of confession from him.

"Fine! Now every one on the boat will know I have them! Clinton's a swell chap—but he likes to tell a good story."

Was he really perturbed or only acting a part? She could not exactly determine.

In confusion, she removed her hand from his, then said in a low voice, "You might be harmed—something might happen—"

He looked at her steadily, his fine gray eyes glowing in the moonlight, smothering her senses with a sweet essence that was nearly unbearable.

He said huskily, "Then you do care—you care what becomes of me?"

She made an attempt to reply but could no longer control her torn nerves. She buried her face in her hands and broke into violent sobs.

"There, there, darling," he soothed, gently gathering her into his arms and holding her close.

He kissed the crown of her head, laid his cool cheek against the wetness of hers. A strange peace permeated her. She stopped sobbing and he wiped her eyes with his handkerchief.

* * *

The whole world drifted past them now, unheeded and dim. In her confused consciousness was a precious rapture mingling oddly with doubt and despair.

She finally stirred in his arms, sat upright, fussed with the compact she took frem her rust-colored bag, and applied powder to her shiny nose.

He lighted a cigaret, tossed the match overboard, blew a thick cloud of smoke through his nostrils.

He remarked, "We've neglected the business end of our bargain. It's my fault, I know. You're so constantly in my mind that when we meet all else slips my attention."

"You're—you're returning Stella's necklace?" she asked, in a tremulous effort to make him seem like the man she had dreamed he could be.

"Yes—in the morning. She told me she forgot to take it to the bank, dared not leave it in the house, and brought it along tonight in her handbag. Now isn't that just like a woman?"

Ray laughed in spite of herself. "Some women," she conceded.

"When we arrived here, she said she had the jitters—begged me to keep her out of danger—said she had a queer premonition something would hapen to her if she kept the pearls."

Ray said nothing. She turned away, tried to read a message in the sparkling stars.

"Haven't you any faith in my—my veracity?" he asked her bluntly.

She made herself gaze at him through a long silence. At length, she uttered a quaint, "Yes—I believe you."

His wide shoulders relaxed against his chair. "Splendid!" he said slowly. "I'm mighty grateful. Nothing like marrying a woman who has faith in you."

"But—I haven't said I—"

"This is not time to discuss incidentals."

"Do you call marriage—an incidental?" she asked.

"When two persons are deeply and truly in love, marriage is simply the culmination of that love. The actual ceremony, though important, is incidental to what came before. The actual fact—that of you and I being in love—is important—that I should meet you was important. I had to maneuver that somewhat adroitly. The finals is plain sailing!"

"Really, you are the strangest man!"

"I haven't time to argue that point with you, my dear. We have a business report to prepare. I'm waiting for yours."

She wondered at his carefree attitude. His gay mouth looked as it had that first night she discovered him in the Continental club. A man who could look like this—could he be infamous at heart?

Involuntarily her frown resolved into a smile. She said, almost eagerly, "Mr. Roper can't think I'm doing very well for him. I've had so much on my mind that general news passed me by, I suppose. But Maude Welch is engaged to Chuck Barnes and says she loves him well enough to support him. He's a keen fellow—clerks in Gorham's furniture store—but has only a small salary. Maude inherited her aunt's estate this spring and is financially independent. Of course, her parents will fight her marriage to Chuck—and he declares he won't marry her until he can support her."

Anyhow, those "economic royalists" come in handy to pay taxes and provide marriageable daughters.

After all, Charlie McCarthy would be merely another piece of wood if it weren't for Edgar Bergen.

Prepare to accept "Pulled a Corrigan" as another addition to slang expressions—with "corrigan" eventually reaching the dictionary as meaning the ultra in mistakes.

Don't Forget the Retail Workers!

ANY such policy as that of the WPA, which announces a plan to buy 13 million dollars worth of surplus clothing directly from manufacturers, is merely another of the New Deal experiments which indicates little grasp of real requirements for national recovery.

There is apparently general agreement that a return to sound prosperity is largely dependent on private business taking up the slack, reducing unemployment and enlarging purchasing power.

Retail merchandising has long been recognized as an essential part of public service and every city and rural community centers around the conveniences offered by stores at which needs can be supplied.

Stores, large and small, have come to be so much taken for granted that comparatively few people stop to think that retail merchandising is an absolute essential to EVERY city and town, and that—taken as a whole, these places of business provide a considerable percentage of the total employment available—and also a material part of the taxes and the contributions required for support of various community activities.

When the WPA buys millions of dollars worth of surplus clothing direct from the manufacturers, so that garment workers may have employment, it deprives retailers of thousands of prospective customers, curtails employment of retail workers, and withdraws from one necessary part of private business the stimulation needed for real recovery.

While Mansfield, or any other city, is a small part of the whole national picture, a look at the local situation gives an excellent idea of conditions in general.

In Mansfield and vicinity many thousands of people earn money in a large variety of ways—from industry, agriculture, business, service, the professions, etc.

A part of this money derives directly from taxes, as in the case of teachers, city and county officials, and other public employes.

In the case of industrial payrolls, much of the money is attracted to Mansfield as a result of wholesale and retail selling in other parts of the country.

When "business is good," in other words, when money is moving in its intended way as "a medium of exchange," the primary payrolls of industries become the secondary payrolls of retail businesses, professions, and various forms of service—each of which furnishes employment and aids in community prosperity and growth.

Any part of the original payroll, public or private, that moves out of the community in which it originates without having passed through a second or third use in that particular community, has failed to perform an important part of its purpose and has worked to the detriment of all of the people in that community in either a direct or indirect way.

Whatever emphasis may be placed on buying from home merchants is based on appreciation of the great importance of making use of this method of re-distributing money in the city and vicinity in which it is earned, so that a part of it can accrue to the benefit and upbuilding of the city and its institutions and to furtherance of the welfare of all residents of the community.

A Case of Driving After Drinking.

A MANSFIELD youth has just been sentenced to the state reformatory, for a term of one to twenty years, after pleading guilty to a second degree manslaughter charge which was the outcome of an automobile crash in which a woman was killed.

Entirely aside from the reformatory sentence imposed on this 19-year-old boy, is the tragic circumstance that all through life he must carry the memory that, by an instant of negligence, he caused the death of another person.

Whether blame for such an occurrence rests more heavily on the young man who must undergo punishment, or on the system which gives little heed to the practice of driving a car after drinking intoxicants, is a matter on which opinions will differ.

It is also worthy of note that this is the only traffic accident inside of Mansfield's city limits thus far this year in which a death resulted from collision between two automobiles.

Surely such an incident should not be permitted to pass without effort on the part of parents, officials and safety-minded citizens to impress young people, and older drivers as well, with the folly—and the danger—of driving after drinking intoxicants of any kind.

He-Men In Season.

THIS is a great summer for out-door fellows fresh from the store and office. They may be a bit pale at the beginning of their two weeks, and very inflamed after the first couple of days. But by the time they start home, their persistence and courage have usually acquired a coat of tan that suggests a whole summer in the open spaces or on the water. American genius for efficiency works here, as elsewhere.

It's a great summer, too, for political candidates, an even hardier breed in some ways. They attend innumerable picnics. They get themselves photographed fishing and cooking camp meals, pitching hay and getting in grain, posing on swimming beaches and wherever people congregate, shaking hands, fraternizing, neighboring, proving that they have a common touch and can take it on any front. They are the real heroes—and most of them will be wonderfully tanned before summer is over.

Then there are those who, from necessity or design, have nothing else to do, and spend the whole summer getting themselves burned to a mahogany red or chestnut brown or Central American black, because they just plain like it. And they will begin to look presentable again along about Thanksgiving time.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SHOULD the stage discuss political and social questions? Is a play packed with such arguments a play? Hitherto, the answer has been, No! But there is a determined effort now to override the "no."

As play brokers and producers will tell you, they are kept busy these days rejecting plays that have as their subject matter such controversial questions as labor, Fascism, Spain, the hereafter, Socialism, pacifism—and Hitler. Nobody really knows how many plays have been written about Hitler. Probably none will be produced—unless it be some dainty comedy (and even that might cause a riot).

Even the brave Federal Theater, with its "living newspapers" and its other offerings that no commercial manager would "dare" to produce, undoubtedly will steer clear of Hitler, or anything that savors of the controversies of Europe.

One movie company put on a movie supposedly touching on Spain, but not mentioning Spain (I believe) and aroused boycotts by certain groups, which believed sides were taken.

That will cause movie companies to revert to ancient history for some time to come.

The stage, having a smaller field, has been bolder.

* * *

TOO VITAL?

But there is a newer group of writers arising, as in all ages such as the present, which refuses to accept the unofficial censorship for the stage (at least) on all that is controversial.

Plays that are considered controversial do finally get a hearing—although the hearing may be delayed for years. (Such was the case of George Bernard Shaw in the 1980's. Some of his plays were almost outmoded before they were produced. But, to be frank, his best plays, his non-controversial plays, probably never will be outmoded).

The stage is too vital a force to remain outside the clash of opinion. No newspaper could exist (nor could the radio) if it did not portray the battle of the contending forces as the world marches on today. Nor, in the end, can the stage.

* * *

ART FIRST

It is true that whatever form of art is chosen for man's expression of his thoughts, only the true art can survive. Thus, if the stage is to be a forum of expression, that expression must be in the highest form of stage art. No mere bombast, or shouting, or even superlative argument will suffice. If the controversies of today are to enter the theater, they must come in as enduring plays—as art first. But if the theater bars controversy in the form of a true play, then the theater will disappear from this age—while the works it rejected will live on to be presented in a future age.

Nothing crude, however, ought to be permitted to enter the theater. A writer should be forced to know his art. But once he knows it, then let Heaven alone stop him!

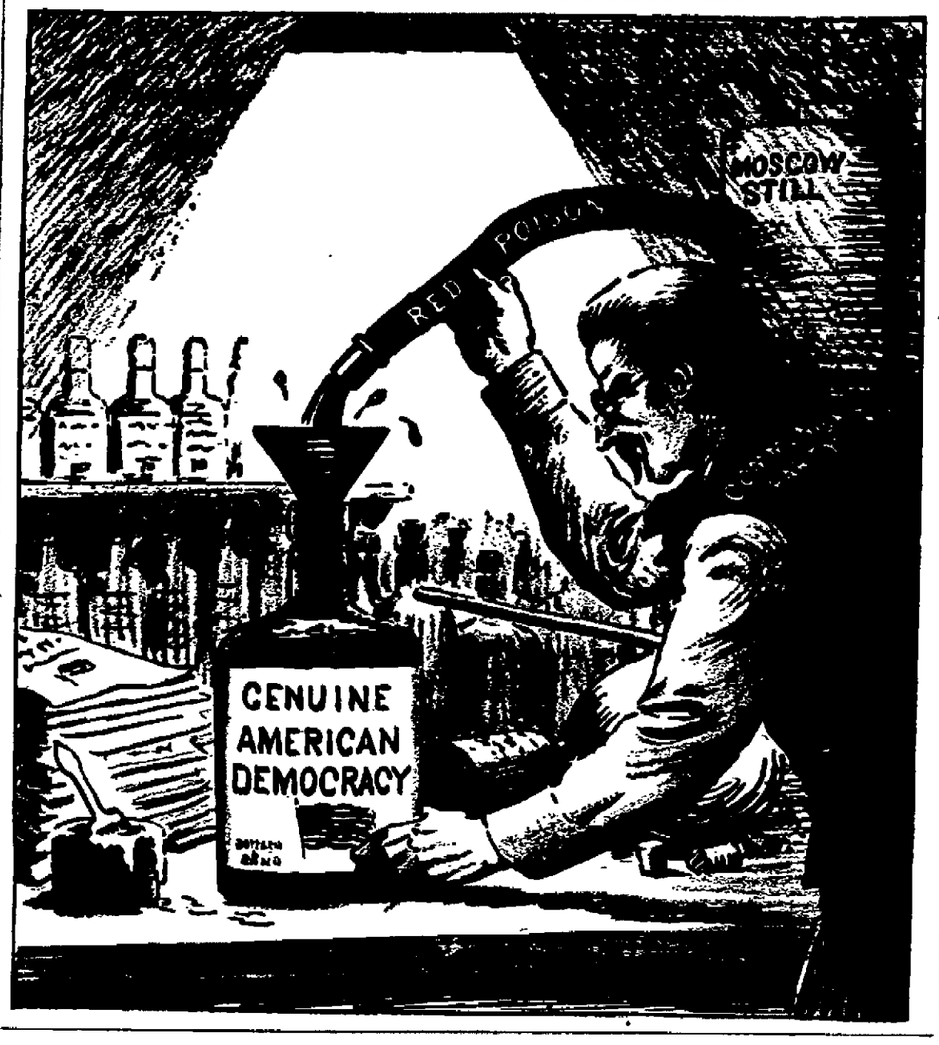
ANOTHER KIND OF BOOTLEGGER



World Trade Would Be Beneficial

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The problem faced by the world's great wheat producing countries just now goes to emphasize how economically senseless the whole earth is.

The United States and Russia notably grow much more wheat that either one needs at home. This year especially America will have an enormous surplus. I suppose it is true of Russia, too. Anyway, it is true here. Naturally we want to sell our over-supply abroad, to peoples who can't grow enough for their domestic requirements.

These other peoples, however, refuse to admit any local shortage. Anyone with half an eye knows that Italy, for example, is not a good wheat country. Nevertheless, Mussolini maintains that it can raise a great plenty. He goes out in person into its skimpy wheat fields and physically assists in harvesting the grain to prove that it is amply available. At the same time, flour has to be so adulterated (down well-nigh to sawdust) that Italians object, saying there is no nourishment, not to mention palatability, in their bread.

* * *

AN ECONOMIC IF—

Now, if Italy would produce something that it is adapted to, and trade it off for some of our wheat, each nation would have a good customer.

Italy, illustratively, is a fine olive oil realm. We import some olive oil already and undoubtedly we could be educated up to consuming still more, with a little intensive Italian salesmanship.

But no. Italy sticks to nationally unprofitable wheat-growing, at the expense of its own potentially profitable olive oil market.

* * *

U. S. ALSO STUBBORN

Uncle Sam traditionally is equally fat-headed. He is showing signs of reason under Secretary of State Hull's policy of international trade agreements, but it is only a recent development.

You do have to hand it to Secretary Hull—a world economist and statesman.

But before his time in a high government post?

Why, when the Smoot-Hawley tariff law was being framed, it was argued that bananas should be virtually kept out of the United States by a protective impost. I heard some of the discussion before the congressional ways and means committee. It was conceded that bananas might be raised under glass even in Maine. Of course that would have been prohibitively expensive. The idea was that the exclusion of bananas would compel Americans to abandon them, eating, instead, American-grown apples.

Honest! That thought was debated seriously.

* * *

ALL HAVE SOMETHING

The United States and Italy and Russia and the banana republics are not the only countries involved.

There is scarcely a country but produces something that it advantageously can trade off with all the other countries. It may be some local product; it may be service.

Wheat, simply, at the moment, is conspicuous.

* * *

GERMANY CORKED UP

Yet one can comprehend the psychology of a country like Germany.

In the event of another war, Germany literally has GOT to be self-supporting. It has not, inherently, food or munitions or anything, but it MUST offer some sort of substitute.

Italy itself is not quite so corked-up—with Ethiopia.

The United States would not be at all restricted. Rubber, tin, phosphates, possibly! But all these sources of supply would be open to Uncle Sam from friendly folk.

* * *

GETTING TOGETHER—

Wheat is not the only issue, either.

Cotton, tobacco, coffee, lots of commodities!

We and Great Britain can get together on world trade. And so can some little countries, on world trade, like Holland and Belgium, and maybe the big country of China.

But there are a number of relatively quarrelsome smallish disturbers—I mean to say that Germany and Italy are of small caliber at present, and yet very dangerous firecrackers.

THIS country, steered by Secretary Hull, should get to something internationally civilized.

But how about Hitler, Mussolini and Japan's cuckoo statesmanship?

Timely Editorial

Self Centered Folks.

The newspaper paragrapher has it that the man in the theater, being annoyed by two women who were talking in the row behind, said: "Excuse me, but we can't hear a word." Whereupon they replied: "What we were talking about is none of your business."

Those women illustrate a type of people who do not seem conscious of how their acts affect other folks. Other manifestations of this spirit are seen during a holiday rush, as people push their way up to counters and windows to get ahead of others.

People dislike to make any public scenes, so such folks frequently get away with their bad manners. If they lived in some countries, someone would tell them in a loud voice what the public thinks of them. That is what they really need to complete their imperfect education.—Newark Advocate.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

The Wage-Hour Bill.

By ELIOT JONES
Professor of Transportation and Public Utilities, Stanford U.

Toward the end of the session Congress passed the controversial wage-hour bill, which in the words of the President places "a floor under wages" and "a ceiling over hours." It goes into effect 120 days after its passage.

The act requires every employer (except the United States, the states, and their political subdivisions) to pay to their employes engaged in inter-state commerce a specified minimum wage, with certain exceptions, shortly to be noted.

During the first year the minimum wage is to be not less than twenty-five cents per hour; during the next six years not less than thirty cents; and thereafter not less than forty cents. However, the act creates certain administrative agencies that are authorized to make the forty cent minimum effective at once in such industries as are able to pay it.

These administrative agencies are an administrator, appointed by the President, who is placed in charge of a Wage and Hour Division in the Department of Labor, and committees appointed by the administrator for every industry. Upon the recommendation of the respective committees the administrator may at any time fix the minimum wage in any industry as high as forty cents.

The act contemplates somewhat different wage minimums for the several industries. In the bitter Congressional dispute over the bill the principal bone of contention was whether the legal minimum should be the same in all parts of the country. As wages are generally lower in the South than in the North, southern Senators insisted that the act provide for differentials. The House bill, however, made no such provision. The measure as finally enacted provides that no minimum wage rate shall be fixed solely on a regional basis, but that in fixing minimum wages the industry committees and the administrator shall take into consideration competitive conditions as affected by production, transportation, and living costs, and also the wages established for work of comparable character by collective labor agreements.

With respect to maximum hours the work week is not to exceed forty-four hours during the first year, forty-two hours during the second year, and forty hours thereafter. The prohibition is not absolute, however; employers may exceed these limits by paying "time and a half" for overtime.

From these minimum wage and maximum hour provisions a number of employes are specifically exempted, notably agricultural workers, individuals engaged in preparing agricultural commodities and fish for the market, employes of certain transportation companies, and employes of retail establishments most of whose selling is intrastate.

Though the act has a humanitarian purpose, its results may prove disappointing. For one thing it will lead to some unemployment, for obviously a law establishing a minimum wage of $16 for a forty-hour week does not make an employe worth that much to his employer. Moreover, some employers, unable to absorb increased labor costs, will be forced to suspend operations, which will also cause unemployment.

The reduction in working hours may diminish output, and thus reduce the national wealth and standards of living. Conceivably legislative prescription of wages and hours will weaken the trade unions; why pay union dues to maintain a strong bargaining power when the desired results can be obtained by bringing pressure to bear on the politicians? And not to be ignored is the fact that the act adds to our vast government bureaucracy, and provides more uncertainty for the sorely harassed business man.

Listen, World!

"Are We All Just Charlie McCarthys?"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE you sick of life? Fed up with people? Convinced that nothing's worth while? Yes?

Then you, and millions of other moderns, will be strong for this letter from young David Hill of Charlotte, N. C.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Do you remember old King David's question of God—"WHAT IS MAN THAT THOU ART MINDFUL OF HIM?"

"It seems to me that the query is as timely today as it was three thousand years ago. What IS Man? Aren't we all just Charlie McCarthys, spending our lives like parrots, repeating the words and thoughts of others? Are any of us capable of an original thought? Don't we live like caged parrots for which there is no escape? Man is born alone and the rest of his life is spent in loneliness. Never does his soul know the companionship of another.

"Some try to escape by losing themselves in work, some in religion, some in philosophy, but all fight for their own interests and for their own future. They work like demons to build a fortune for themselves, either on earth or in heaven, and when they finish their work they are not able to enjoy that which they have.

"MAN TRIES TO ESCAPE BECAUSE HE IS SO AFRAID. HE RUNS DOWN THE ENDLESS CORRIDOR OF TIME CRYING BECAUSE HE IS SO SMALL, SO PUNY AND SO NAKED. FASTER AND FASTER HE RUNS HOPING THAT HE WILL HOLD OUT UNTIL HE FINDS AN OPEN DOOR OF ESCAPE, BUT ALAS, THERE IS NONE.

"He is alone, lost; without an answer.

"Is there no answer?"

David Hill—age 23.
Charlotte, N. C.

I do believe there is an answer, David, and that your own letter is part of that answer.

IF WE HAD NO OTHER PROOF OF GOD'S EXISTENCE THAN OUR NEED OF HIM, THAT ALONE WOULD BE ENOUGH. For that need IS God. Every cry for justice . . . every protest against cruelty . . . every clutch at beauty . . . and applauding throb at courage . . . and dream of love . . . IS THE VOICE OF GOD'S STRUGGLING AGAINST, CRYING OUT FROM HUMAN CLAY.

You say we are "lost and alone." But we are never lost or alone. Always that Voice whispers within us . . . always we know where we belong . . . always we are trying to get there.

It is true; we are still Charlie McCarthys. But the Voice that breathes through us is not a parrot's chatter. It is that same Voice which "moved upon the face of the waters . . . and said: Let there be light; and there was light." It is that same Force which "formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul."

WE SEEK GOD BECAUSE WE ARE A PART OF GOD. As water returns to its level, so man seeks his level in God.

"Yes, that sounds wonderful," you say, "but it still doesn't PROVE anything. Look at all the misery . . . all the vileness and cruelty—"

Very well, look at them, if you choose. BUT WHY CHOOSE? That same Force which breathed the breath of life into your common clay . . . breathed, also, ITS OWN GODLY RIGHT OF CHOICE . . . ITS BEAUTIFUL AND TERRIBLE "FREE WILL." As if it said—

"Now here is life. Prove what you want with it—find what you wish in it—a heaven or a hell . . . a purposeful plan or a pointless mess. See yourself as a coward running—if you choose—or as a conqueror advancing. And for your evidence, select a Joan of Arc or a Jezebel . . . a Nero or a Lincoln."

You may take your choice! See life through the eyes of a God . . . or a Mud-pie. Believe we're all going to the dogs or climbing up toward the angels. Sneer and pout because no one can give you all the answers—OR DECIDE TO LIVE LIKE A GOD EVEN IF YOU CAN'T PROVE THAT THERE IS ONE.

An Ideal Pension

In tribute to his fifty years' service with the firm the man was presented with the usual gift at the customary dinner. But in addition the company awarded him this pension. From now on he may work when he so desires, he may report for work late any time he wishes and if he doesn't want to come in to work at all he has that privilege.

The idea is that after his long and faithful service he will feel lost if he has no work to do. Our prediction is he will report for work, and on time.—Boston Post.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

OLD LYME, Conn.—This little town of 1200 people belongs in a novel, but I am not the man to put it there. To do that properly your grandfather would have had to come from here. For it is an old town, with old trees, "trees that remember your grandfather's name." It has a manner and a way of thinking all its own, and while one might really come to know it from constant association after a long time, you would never get it from asking hurried questions or from reading books, not if you read them a hundred years.

From where I am writing this, which is on the patio of Gardenside, part of Boxwood Manor, you see people strolling the quiet paths. Others are on their way to the golf course, a mile or so away. Still others are hurrying off to the beach, where they are sure of a fine swim and where they hope for one of those healthy suntans. It's a funny thing about tans. Some people brown like Aztecs, but I only succeed in becoming red as a parboiled lobster. And then I peel.

* * *

THIS Boxwood Manor is an old resort that sprawls and rambles over acres of ground. Its vast flower gardens and vegetable gardens are famous, and Sam, its chef, has become an important personage to those who prefer their steaks just so, and their lobster dinners with just the right amount of "ump!"

A block or so down the street is a two-story house, painted white with green shutters, which is owned by Mrs. Bertha Dougherty. It was built in 1710. One hundred and four years later, that is, in 1814, its owners gave it away, "because it is so old it isn't any good anymore." Now, 124 years later, it is one of the loveliest examples of early Connecticut architecture found anywhere. There is a secret hideaway in it used as one of the stations along the "underground" railway for escaping slaves during the Civil war. Its beams are hand-hewn from the trunks of oaks. It is built with home-made nails, and its rafters are pegged together with stout wooden pins.

* * *

YEARS ago they moved this house from its original site, and to accomplish this they had to wait until winter, and put it on log-rollers, and have oxen drag it over the ice. They dragged it for miles, and then the ice went out, and the oxen had to hurry away to drag the felled timber out of the forests. So the house just sat there in the center of the road for a year, until the ice came again, with the family living in it. And when the winter grew so severe that the oxen couldn't work in the forest any longer they came back and completed the task of transporting the house.

How they did this no one really quite knows, for moving a house with a chimney intact is still a problem for modern engineering. But this one was moved without harming the house in any way. And its fireplace is large enough to barbecue a steer. I spent an hour going through those old rooms, listening to its history, and an hour isn't nearly enough. That's the way it is with nearly everything up here. To a visitor Time is the greatest enemy. There just isn't enough of it to find out the things you want to know.

Vagabond Hats, Tiny Chapeaux In Fall Picture

In spite of the trend toward doll-sized hats, there are still a lot of hats that will cover the head. You may want one of the gay, tiny Paris models for your gayer moments, but for business, sports or just day to day wear the prime favorite of many seasons —the vagabond is making an appearance and a bid for fall favor. The model shown below is a white fur felt with a feather and green grosgrain trim worn by Marie Wilson.

Even though the trend toward tiny hats is important, and many of the doll hats being shown are exquisite and becoming to their wearers, other styles are still favored Schiaparelli introduced these midget chapeaus last April and they have definitely caught on The model shown above which is being worn by Rosemary Lane is, however, a rough surfaced, navy blue fur felt vagabond. Narrow bands of navy and white grosgrain ribbon tie simply in front after banding the crown.

Expert on Male Attire Approves of Different Costumes For Weddings

By JOAN DURHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Is your husband worried over the correct attire for summer weddings?

The cutaway (morning coat) is the accepted apparel for all formal weddings, regardless of the time of year But there is no reason why exceptions may not be made and still be in good taste, says Marie Coudert Brennig of the Wedding Embassy.

Finances, the locality in which the wedding is to be held and the weather all work changes in the masculine mind, she points out. Age and station in life are important, too

Or His Wife.

The successful older business man who makes a point (or whose wife makes a point) of always being correct on such matters may insist on wearing a cutaway (or the "director's suit," with a short coat like a dark blue sack coat) and striped trousers. His collegiate son, however, will almost always insist on white linen, white garbardine or a blue coat and white flannels in summer. In winter he may even wear a good dark suit

The point is that apparel must be consistent. Timothy College, jr., for instance, shouldn't wear gloves, a black bow or a white pique tie or spats—just to dress up his outfit. Those accessories belong to the strictly formal attire. Mixing them is absolutely incorrect.

The Right Way.

Strictly speaking, the correct wedding attire for masculine guests is:

For formal daytime weddings (held before 6 o'clock): black or oxford gray cutaway; gray-striped trousers; white plain or pleated bosom shirt; four-in-hand, bow or Ascot tie ;top hat; wing or turned-down collar; gray suede or white buckskin gloves; black calf or patent-tipped oxfords with, perhaps, spats of linen or box cloth to match the gloves. For autumn or winter wear, the single or double-breasted waistcoat nearly always matches the cutaway, while in spring or summer it may be white, gray or buff linen.

For formal evening weddings (held after 6 o'clock): tails (full dress); trousers to match—with a silk or satin stripe on the side seams; a shirt with a starched bosom, plain white linen or pique, one or two studs to show; wing collar; white bow tie of plain or figured pique; white single or double-breasted vest; silk or opera hat; white kid gloves; patent leather, calfskin shoes—plain oxfords or pumps; one or two white pearl or white enamel studs to show.

Dark and Light.

Although the bridegroom wears a cutaway because the formality of his bride's dress may demand it at a formal garden wedding—or even at an informal daytime wedding at church, home or in a hotel—the men guests may wear dark coats and white trousers and white linen or garbardine in summer. The bridegroom may make himself more comfortable by adding a white linen waistcoat, white buckskin gloves and white sailcloth spats instead of the heavier accessories.

Warning: If a Tuxedo is substituted for the full-dress suit for the formal evening wedding—because many of the men do not have cut-aways—they should be instructed to wear a black tie. White ties are never worn with Tuxedos.
